Warning!

Against Counterfeits of the Magic Cure.

No Box is genuine without our new Steel Engraved, Proprietary Stamp.

Also,

Do not be deceived by imitations of our Remedy under other names, which are on the market at low prices! This is only evidence of the success of our medicine, and the experience of all worthy preparations.

Our LITTLE RED BOOK also has been imitated by competitors, whose cupidity found no conscience to restrain their ingenuity.

All stories of pretended partners are false. I never had a partner in this business, and no man living was ever permitted to know anything of the ingredients of the MAGIC CURE, except the proprietor himself.

All statements to the contrary are false and fraudulent, and attempts to trade on the merits of the MAGIC CURE

Substitute for Quinine!

The MAGIC CURE is a full substitute for Quinine in all cases! Costs far less! More certain in its results! Without unpleasant effects!

You will observe we have nearly stopped the publication of testimonial letters. It is mostly cheap, worthless remedies that rely upon that method of publicity. We guarantee a cure in every case where directions are followed. Obstinate cases, however, should consult proprietor's office, giving particulars.

N. B.—Do not be deceived by a new, cheap imitation of our trade mark, called Mag-net-ic Cure.

New Series.

Publisher's Notice.

With the present series, The LITTLE RED BOOK begins the Sixth year of its existence.

The past has been a success; the future is full of promise.

Read by the rich and poor alike, an enormous number has gone into circulation.

We tender our thanks to the numerous enthusiastic patrons who have given their influence to make us known to their friends far and near.

New and Startling.

We are aware that some of the propositions herein promulgated are new and somewhat revolutionary; but the experience of many years in testing these theories has proved them correct, and we make bold to stand by the announcements.

Material progress is the work to which we devote time, talents, capital.

The world is benefited by the dissemination of new ideas.

If "the law and justice" become mere glittering generalities, subverted by "absurd decisions" from the "bench," or the tricks and strategy of lawyers, the people should arouse and quietly annul all old precedents and start again with a new and simple style of jurisprudence, that all can understand.

If the old and learned profession of medicine have settled into a groove so deep, dogmatic, and unsuccessful as to lose the confidence of a progressive people, the gate is opened for other minds with less pretensions and more practical work.

Whatever may be said of the centuries passed and gone, ours of the 19th is an age of thought, by the masses of people.

Now, truly, "time and tide wait for no man;" unsuccessful ideas are quickly cast aside by a thinking world.

Our Subject.

From the earliest settlement of this continent, the practical American mind has been keenly alive to the value of expedients.

Boundless fields for enterprise opened before a scanty population.

Necessity demanded, and machinery took the place of men.

Horse-power became too slow, and the locomotive revolutionized travel and transportation.

The ocean was found inconveniently wide, and steam reduced it three-fourths.

When the forests disappeared we plunged deep into the earth and brought up coal.

Oil, springing like water from subterranean arteries, supplied the student's lamp, when other resources failed.

Thought demanded conveyance equal even to its own activity, and Morse traversed land and sea with a network of wires, and placed a very Jupiter at every intersection.

One Deficiency.

During all these years of progress, one great and increasing defect had developed, which the resources of science and perseverance of men have vainly essayed to correct.

Our Country,

Blessed with great varieties of soil, climate, and productions, is found to contain also elements destructive to the health and life of its peoples.

Succeeding generations of men appealed to science for relief, but no adequate relief came.

Was science a failure?

Must the wheels of progress turn back in consequence of the impending decrepitude of the people?

Forbid it! Enterprise!!!

Forbid it! Patriotism!!!

Forbid it! Common Sense!

Where was the ever ready practical American mind, which had so often in the great past, come to the aid of progress? Where? Hush!! See!!

A blank page on the scroll of history is just receiving the words of relief as seen in the illustration on our title page, !!! The Magic Cure !!!

Malaria.

STRANGE as it may seem, with all the security which the advancement of the present day affords, there is a danger to which all are exposed—a dread monster, at whose shrine all are hourly in danger of being offered up.

Miasm, or Malarial influence, will in certain conditions of the atmosphere, envelop whole sections of country, cities, and towns, and every individual, whose physical system is in a condition to receive it, will be more or less affected.

After a person has become inoculated with Malaria, symptoms of disease are most certain to ensue. Generally, these symptoms proceed from the vegetable organs, which it attacks first; but, above all, and primarily, the liver. An almost immediate effect is, a retarded secretion of bile, the preparation of which is manifestly, from a knowledge of physiology, encompassed by the functions of the liver, the largest gland in the body; its weight being about four pounds in the healthy adult.

Whenever the biliary secretion is diminished, constipation is a certain result; the entire alimentary canal becomes surcharged with effete products, which become perfectly dry, or nearly so, the absorbents carrying away the fluids into the circulation. As the apparatus for waste ceases to perform the work of removing the excrementitious materials, the stomach, the grand factory for the separation of the same, refuses, longer, to perform the prescribed functions.

By sympathy with the brain, through the pneumo-gastric nerve, the mental faculties become deteriorated: headache, dizziness, dimness of vision, loss of memory, melancholia, or even insanity or a general condition of stultification, may be superinduced.

This Malaria is a Microscopic Germ of disease which enters the blood through the lungs, thence conveyed to every part of the system, sooner or later develops into an active poison, and becomes a sort of parasite on the vital forces.

We find a large proportion of the sufferings of mankind are the result, directly or indirectly, of this Malarial or Miasmatic Poison in the air we breathe.

Scientific Research

And extensive experiments have determined with much certainty the results which follow the impregnation; and we are justified, on general principles, in boldly asserting that probably not a man, woman, or child entirely escapes some form of its developments.

Broad Ground.

These developments cover a wide field; are felt in nearly every organ of the body, suggesting the presence of many different maladies by name, which are in reality only symptoms produced by the one prime, sufficient cause, viz.: the growth and irritation of the poison germ in the blood.

We do not Recognize

The existence of numerous different diseases, each requiring different treatment and remedies. This theory has thrown mystery, doubt, and uncertainty over the treatment of disease for a thousand years.

This Poison Malaria

enters the citadel at the lung gate, seizes the nervous centres of the brain, heart, liver, stomach, and other organs, and with a despotism and profligacy worthy of a Caligula, drives the whole machinery of the body on to its own destruction.

All the various functions are perverted, bringing forth many kinds of disorders, for they must obey this terrible dictator of nervous force.

Need we wonder then that

Liver Complaints, Chills and Fever, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Weak Eyes, Heart Disease, Spinal Disease, Kidney Disease, Scarlet Fevers, Intermittent, Billious, Typhoid, and Yellow Fevers, Diphtheria, Female Complaints, Scrofula, Cancer, Tumors, Insanity, Paralysis, and other maladies are produced in a healthy body?

With our battery of Magic Cure, we charge direct upon the unnatural despot who has taken possession of the citadel or centre of nerve force and caused all this demoralization, release Nature from her thralldom, and she reconstructs the diseased parts and restores them to their former harmonious whole.

While continuing the subject of prevalent diseases which are amenable to the influence of the

we are bound to remark that the ancient idea of finding a separate specific for every form of complaint, has about exploded.

The fact of the matter is, that in working from this point of view the medical profession has failed to find bottom.

It is one thing to palliate, or temporarily relieve, and quite another to eradicate from the foundation up.

For many years, in the Little Red Book and otherwise, I have advocated the proposition that the various forms of physical suffering are results of a general condition of the system, caused by malarial or other poisons in the Liver and Blood! Hence, one course of proper treatment should relieve them all, if continued a proper length of time.

Our Experience

with the Magic Cure for ten years has proved the correctness of this theory to a remarkable extent.

Disease of the Liver,

Developed into Disease of the Lungs,
 Developed into Disease of the Kidneys,
 Developed into Diseases of the Spine,
 Developed into Diseases of the Skin,
 Developed into Diseases of the Heart,
 Developed into Diseases of Females,
 Developed into Diseases of the Brain, are all treated and cured on this principle.

All Chills vanish immediately when this remedy is used. All types of Fever are subdued; Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Dyspepsia are entirely relieved.

Coughs, Weak Lungs, Hemorrhage, Consumption, General Debility, Scrofula, Boils, Abscesses, Cancer, Tumors, and all types of Female Weaknesses or Irregularities, are all reached and relieved when other treatment has failed; the complexion is thus greatly improved and beautified.

Cancer and Tumors!

Among all morbid growths, none is so formidable as Cancer. This terrible phenomenon arises from a point of infection, a poison germ, which causes the growth of tissue around it in an abnormal manner, different from the natural interchange of particles.

A Parasite.

The nutrient material is appropriated by this king germ, and a considerable parasite upon the vital forces asserts itself in the face of Nature and leads the victim down to death.

No Knife or Caustic.

Caustics and the knife are equally barbarous and ineffectual. The Magic Cure does not attempt vain attacks upon the full-fledged production, but eradicates the poison from the blood, reverses the order of things, interrupts the supply of that strange mixture of virus and nutriment, and so operating upon the forces of secretion and absorption as to compel the disruption of the mass little by little until the original kernel or point of infection is reached and destroyed.

Consumption.

Conspicuous among the novelties in adaptation of the Magic Cure appears that disease, Consumption.

The experience of ages gives little hope for a cure; the poison that produced it may have been transmitted for generations.

We Propose here to Say!

and are perfectly able to substantiate the same: That large numbers of consumptive cases are curable. We assure all unfortunates that a stern and regular use of our Magic Cure will be followed by astonishing results in cases of their class.

We waste no time in the attempt to palliate results, our remedy searches out and removes the active cause of the infection, and Nature relieved from its presence, soon repairs damages, and the voyage of life goes on.

It Is a Poison.

This vicious malarial or miasmatic poison which abounds all around us and which we now so successfully combat with the Magic Cure, is introduced into the circulation through the medium of the air and lungs, then conveyed to all parts of the body, to all the organs and tissues.

Shortness of Breath and Heart Disease.

Although we uniformly disown the claim that our Magic Cure is a panacea, it seems to be almost unlimited in range of adaptation!

This arises from the fact we claim first to have promulgated—that so many different types of disease spring from one prime sufficient cause, this common enemy,

The Poison Germ in the Blood, which our remedy eradicates.

Shortness of Breath!

May be a positive result from obstructions in the air tubes of the lungs, caused by local disease, as in Bronchitis, when the tubes are obstructed by excessive secretion of pus.

The mucous membrane of the lungs, in Bronchitis, is doing excessive duty and secreting abnormal material.

The Magic Cure is very effectual in regulating the secretions of the glands.

But the common difficulty, called Shortness of Breath or Dyspnœa, arises from where the valves become thickened or otherwise distorted, resulting in what is called regurgitation or backward escape of the blood, as of water through the valves of a force pump.

Disease of the Heart,

The blood in the system does not go the round sufficiently rapid, nor does a proper natural quantity of blood reach the lungs in a given time to receive oxygen from the air, hence Dyspnœa, or a feeling

Like Lack of Air!

Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

Probably no developments of the poison germ in the blood are so common as those designated by the peculiar groans which are termed respectively Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

The conflict which rages almost continuously between the nervous system and the usurping enemy may, perhaps, be compared to a cloud of satans dancing their hornpipes on the telegraph wires. These nerve wires, so well intended for the conveyance of pleasurable sensations, may nevertheless be found to do unpleasant service.

As we are specimens of Nature, and participate in her sufferings and joys, so must we necessarily experience whatever pain or discomfort occurs from violence to her laws, whether from our own acts or conditions forced upon us.

A slight disturbance, at first, of the equilibrium that Nature arranged so beautifully in the organization of man, is often sufficient to produce a shriek of anguish from any sensitive nerve imposed upon. Head-ache, Tooth-ache, Ear-ache, Pain in the Eyes, and Pain in the Face are Neuralgic.

Back-ache, Shoulder-ache, Hand-ache, Knee-ache, Foot-ache, etc., may be classed Rheumatic.

While a pain in the sides, pain in the chest, pain around the Liver and Heart may be either one.

Diseases of the spine, including curvatures, are fearful illustrations of the effects of the Poison germ in the blood.

Very bad cases of all these are constantly being subdued by our Magic Cure, when used with persistence.

Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever.

In the investigations of Malaria and its connection with prevalent diseases, the discovery has been lately made that the exciting cause in cases of the above class is the malarial or miasmatic poison of which we treat.

This theory has been so thoroughly proven, that, in the city of New York, the diseases can be mostly located geographically, by persons familiar with the health of the wards. But the poison may spread to other localities !

The Magic Cure, applied to Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, finds itself in conflict with the same malicious invader that entered the citadel at the lung gate and usurped control of the entire nerve forces.

There is, however, in symptoms of this class, a tendency to more rapid progress of the disease, more malignant, and more frequently fatal, than in most other types of malarial developments.

The blood loses its vitality, and the patient sinks for lack of strength. It is, therefore, of paramount importance to give strength. A teaspoonful of gin, or rum, or bourbon, should be given every one or two hours, also raw eggs beaten up in milk, and other nutritious diet.

One pill of the Magic Cure every four to six hours, according to age, the former when over ten years. This treatment rarely fails if persevered in.

The Magic Cure will surely prevent attacks when used in advance by others, in a family exposed to the poison.

Our Remedy.

It is a vegetable compound, not a cathartic; contains no Quinine, no Mercury, no Arsenic, no Strychnine, or any other poison, and is entirely harmless, even when used continuously a long time.

But Words are Cheap.

We do not rely on argument so much as deeds, and therefore present to an appreciative, but much abused public, some evidence we have selected to prove, by results, the correctness of these theories.

This edition of the Little Red Book is intended to circulate chiefly in the vicinity of New York, therefore the cases selected for reference are mostly residents here where they can be easily found to verify our statements.

Low Malarial Fever.—Frank Flanders, late well-known conductor on the Erie, also on the Hudson River R. R., residence No. 15 West 46th Street, N. Y. The fever continued about a year; baffled all previous medical treatment; was reduced very low, but finally relieved and brought out of it by the Magic Cure in a manner almost a marvel to his friends. Among other remedies that failed to relieve him was Moore's Pills. This case will be vouched for by John C. Mackenzie, Lawyer, 68 Wall Street.

Sciatic Rheumatism.—Adie, wife of T. H. Ryan, of the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, late of the Brooklyn Argus. Numerous liniments, mineral waters, and Physicians' prescriptions failed to relieve; a few boxes of the Magic Cure entirely subdued the symptoms.

Chronic Rheumatism of long standing.—Alderman James Webb, 62 Morton Street, N. Y., was nearly incapacitated for business. Is now a strong advocate of our remedy.

Chronic Rheumatism.—Extreme nervousness, emaciation, loss of sleep, poor appetite, chronic indigestion. Mrs. T. S. Ellis, wife of the well-known Capt. Ellis, 230 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Her case began with a milk leg, 25 years ago, has been a great sufferer; all medical skill was baffled until the Magic Cure was applied; now is relieved, sleeps well, gains flesh and strength.

Pneumonia, Typhoid Fever, Hemorrhage of the Lungs and Cough.—Manly A. Burnham, 45 Grove Street, N. Y. A bad case relieved and cured.

Menses Suppressed, Early Consumption.—Miss Mary Kelley, then of 320 East 63d Street, N. Y. since married and removed to Albany. Her case will be found on page 29.

Chills and Fever.—A. B. Cohu, Merchant, 197 Water Street, N. Y.

Bright's Disease, with sedimentary deposit. —A complicated case, with much suffering and debility, and pronounced incurable. Edward H. Dorland, Merchant 307 4th Avenue, N. Y., residence 152 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Entirely relieved in about three months.

Neuralgia.—A bad case of suffering! Mrs. S. M. Randall, 618 Leonard Street, Greenpoint, N. Y. She was advised to use the Magic Cure by Sergeant Reade, of the 7th Precinct, Brooklyn Police.

Stiff Neck.—Relieved by one box of the Magic Cure, on the person of Charles H. Williamson, General Manager of the Aldine Press, N. Y. He is much delighted with his rapid cure, which had baffled other treatment.

Neuralgia.—Major J. Braisted, New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y. Severe case. Mr. B. is a strong advocate of the Magic Cure.

Dumb Ague.—The two Messrs. Cleveland, of the firm of Edgar Farmer & Co., Trunk Merchants, No. 18 Cortlandt Street, N. Y., their factory and residence at Newark, N. J. Both gentlemen have been so well cured that they are strong friends of the remedy.

Malarial Fever.—A little daughter of Capt. W. H. Russell, of the U. S. N., Washington, D. C. Her case was critical and baffled other medicine. Complete relief was obtained by the Magic Cure.

Spinal Curvature.—Much suffering, prostration, loss of appetite and nearly helpless. U. B. Mumford, a young Lawyer, of Albany, N. Y., now removed to Nebraska. Eminent Physicians of this city had failed to relieve him. The Magic Cure gave him a good backbone and general health so improved he is attending to business.

Inflammatory Rheumatism.—The terrible case of Mr. John Car-on, Haverstraw, N. Y. This man was a great sufferer for a long time, and there seemed to be no remedy adequate to relieve him, at least the doctors found none. He became helpless, in bed, and nearly dead. The Magic Cure relieved his sufferings, saved his life, took him out of bed, and at last accounts he was comfortable, able to take care of himself, and walk about as he pleased. It required much perseverance through several months' use of the medicine to accomplish this much. The Rev. Oscar Wood and others at Haverstraw will vouch for this statement.

Case of a Young Lady.—A young unmarried lady, daughter of a distinguished Professor of the French language, in this city of New York, had been suffering from female irregularities for three years, resulting in pronounced heart disease, with extreme debility and prostration, unable to endure the least exertion, and very pallid complexion; all medical treatment failed to relieve, and her physician considered her recovery hopeless. The Magic Cure was then applied through the advice of a friend, and the young lady soon relieved in every particular. Reference to the parties of this case may be obtained at the Magic Cure Office, 191 Fulton Street, N. Y., or of S. M. Beckley, Esq., 132 East 24th Street.

Ovarian Tumor.—Case of Mrs. Hannah Williams, of Westfield, Union Co., N. J., age 63. In the spring of 1875 began to notice a fullness and weight in the abdomen, became much bloated and painful to move about. Soon a hard lump appeared. That summer she had a severe attack of bilious fever, followed by typhoid, lay sick some time, delirious, etc. The doctor's attention being called to the lump, he pronounced it an ovarian tumor. It grew to about five inches diameter. The doctor did not seem to give relief to her fever or general condition. A box of the Magic Cure was obtained, and she took a pill every hour for seven hours, when the fever entirely left. She continued these pills according to directions, and in three days was able to leave her room. She took the Magic Cure with faith and perseverance seven or eight months, when the tumor was entirely gone and her health better than for years, no symptoms of its return now over two years. The Rev. James Greaves, her pastor, confirms this woman's statement.

Paralysis of the entire left side, affecting speech, hearing, and thought.—Mrs. Emily A. Greilet, No. 335 7th Street, Jersey City, N. J., age about 25 years. Her trouble began with chills and fever some months before, showing malaria to be the original cause. She was now entirely relieved by the Magic Cure and full powers restored after about four weeks treatment. Older persons would likely require longer time to obtain relief from a similar affection.

Neuralgia.—One of the most obstinate cases on record had been treated a long time without success by the best skill in the profession. Her sufferings were fearful. The wife of D. L. Clayton, Undertaker, Turkey P. O., N. J. Even the Magic Cure was baffled for a long time, but after an almost hopeless struggle with the malady for several months our great remedy came out triumphant. Many citizens of Monmouth Co., N. J., are our witnesses, for she had the sympathies of the entire community.

Sick Head-ache.—Numerous cases cured, but we have neglected to keep a record of the names. In most of this class of cases perseverance in taking the remedy is necessary to perfect a cure, and a small number will not be cured at all.

Tic Douloureux, or Facial Neuralgia in its most intense form.—Several cases of this terrible affliction have come under our treatment and been entirely relieved. It may be remarked that the active cause of this type of disease usually also produces chronic indigestion, and we have to cure both at the same time and in cases that have long baffled the best medical skill of the world.

The Magic Cure removes the original cause in the liver and both results cease.

Persons who resort to this remedy for relief from this type of anguish, must remember our injunction, persevere, for thus only can you succeed. Some relief will be obtained sooner, but bad cases will require several months continuance to entirely stop the recurrence.

The New York Juvenile Asylum, and Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan Asylum, New York, are using the "Magic Cure" among their children in place of Quinine, with excellent success.

John V. Farwell, Esq., of Chicago, Ill (Firm of John V. Farwell & Co., the Great Wholesale Dry Goods and Carpet House of the West), was cured of a severe bilious attack with chills, and his general health greatly improved by the use of this remedy, and the firm, in consequence, have sold a large quantity of the medicine.

Every Druggist will supply it.

The sense of security in having the "Magic Cure" in one's possession, is worth a hundred times its cost.

Interview.

One day in January, 1873, I called at the new and beautiful palace of

Messrs. Tiffany & Co.,

Union Square, New York, when I had the following interview with C. L. TIFFANY, Esq., the head of this eminent firm of Jewelers.

Question.—"Mr. Tiffany, you have used the medicine 'Magic Cure for Chills and Fevers.' I would like to inquire with what result?"

Mr. Tiffany.—"We have had the 'Magic Cure' in use some time in my family and the families of those we employ—nearly two years—and with the most gratifying success. My wife looks after such things more than I. She values the medicine highly, I know, for I have, at her request, been down to 96 Liberty Street myself and purchased it by the dozen boxes at a time. She recommends it to all her friends."

Question.—"Do you have much Chills and Fever at your country residence?"

Mr. Tiffany.—"We have had some Chills at Irvington (on the Hudson) before we obtained the 'Magic Cure,' but we have no fear of it now. This medicine has been a first-rate thing for some of our families at Irvington. Our domestics were sick with Chills and we were much troubled until we heard of this 'Magic Cure.' It has worked admirably in all cases we have known anything about. My wife considers it the best thing she can get anywhere for Chills and all malarious troubles, and always keeps a supply at both our Madison Avenue residence and Irvington."

Interview with Rev. E. W. Hager, Chaplain in the U. S. Navy.

Mr. T.—"Mr. Hager, you had a somewhat remarkable experience in a trial of the Magic Cure, and I would like to publish the facts. The public want proofs, and your evidence will furnish another valuable link in our chain which may convince some other doubting sufferers."

Mr. H.—"Yes, Mr. T., I will cheerfully give you the facts. About two years ago, your Little Red Book fell in my way. I looked at it and cast it aside; again I saw it and read a portion of it; again sought, found and read it thoroughly.

I had suffered intensely five or six years, with every pain and ache and symptom that malarial poison can produce; among which are vertigo, irregular action of the heart and pulse, excessive flatulence, nervous prostration, chronic indigestion; every few weeks, terrible cramp in the pit of the stomach, lasting from ten minutes to an hour, during which I could scarcely speak or breathe; eminent physicians said to my friends, as I since learned, that in one of these attacks, not far in the future, I would die. At times my breathing was difficult though painless; unable to walk any distance, or ascend a flight of stairs without much weariness and profuse perspiration.

I consulted many physicians whose treatment and remedies failed to relieve, and I lost faith and well-nigh gave up in despair.

In this condition I read your Little Red Book, sent for the medicine, and began its use.

In less than a week I felt that recuperation had begun. My recovery was slow, but decided and sure. The spasms or cramps in the pit of the stomach, which had continued for years, ceased very soon; not a single recurrence or symptom. My strength of body, limbs and voice returned, and now I am well, in fact, feel new again.

But it took months of time and a score and a half of boxes to affect this.

My daughter at the West has been for years a great sufferer, and after trying many physicians without relief, is now using the Magic Cure, and wonderfully benefitted already by that destroyer of malarial poison.

Another Interview!

In March, 1873, I had the following interview with Mr. CHARLES E. EGLEE, of the Fourth National Bank of New York, corner of Pine and Nassau Streets.

Question.—"Mr. EGLEE, I have called to make a few inquiries on a subject foreign to banking, if you can spare a few moments. I am informed you have used the medicine, 'Magic Cure for Chills and Fever,' in your family. What is your opinion of it?"

Mr. Eglee.—"My experience, and the experience of those I know who have tried it, has given me a very decided opinion as to its merits."

"I think this remedy the greatest discovery of the age."

"My wife was sick with the Chills for six years, summer and winter, with scarcely any interruption. The most stubborn case that all the Doctors I employed ever heard or read of—and I had twelve of the best Physicians I could get, and not any of them could stop the Chills. I don't believe a more stubborn case could possibly exist."

Question.—"What, Mr. EGLEE, do you mean to say six years of almost uninterrupted Chills?"

Mr. E.—"Yes, indeed; I do mean just so. I took her to different sections of the country, for 'change of air;' but it was of no benefit at all. She had the Chills just the same.

"I look upon this Malaria—as they call it—as a most terrible scourge. I heard of others being cured with all sorts of remedies, and I made haste to get them all; indeed I might say I procured 'everything under the sun,' I could hear of, for this complaint, and all to no purpose.

"She became so reduced, so feeble, and so emaciated, that the Physicians did not dare give her any more medicine. Her case seemed hopeless indeed.

"This was her condition when I chanced to learn of the 'Magic Cure,' and it was only after two or three interviews with Mr. TALLCOT that I ventured to try them, and then with hesitancy, hardly daring to hope for any favorable results. But imagine our delight and astonishment, when, in a short time, the Chills stopped, and after taking a few boxes, there was an end to that six years of Chills and Fever."

Question.—"Has she had any Chills since?"

Mr. E.—"No! she recovered perfectly from them with the use of three or four boxes of 'Magic Cure.'"

Question.—"How did you learn of the 'Magic Cure?'"

Mr. E.—"A friend told me of it. I never saw any advertisement of it, but I think it ought to be extensively advertised as a great public benefit. You may refer to me at any time and give my address: Fourth National Bank of New York.

Another Interview I

One evening in February, 1873, I had the pleasure of the following interview with Mr. H. E. HOSFORD, of Elizabeth, N. J. (Office, Pine Street, New York, Broker.)

Question.—"Mr. HOSFORD, I have come to have a little chat with you this evening about the 'Magic Cure for Chills and Fever.' Hearing you have had some experience in its use, I am anxious to know anything you are willing to tell me."

Mr. H.—"Well, Sir, I have had an experience with it, and it's not been a little trivial trial, but a long and persistent effort to test it to the uttermost. And I have something to tell that you may possibly think pretty large talk, but I can substantiate everything I say with the best of testimony—good, sound, living witnesses.

"First, then, we have cured our little daughter of Chills and Fever. She was a very sick child; our Doctor had been treating her for a long time, and yet the disease seemed 'rooted and grounded' into her very system. She was emaciated to a mere skeleton and we became greatly alarmed about her. Just at this time I chanced to meet Mr. VERNAM, and he told me of the 'Magic Cure,' how much it had benefited his wife and his father-in-law, Judge QUACKENBOS (the Judge having been cured of Chills and Fever after suffering over a year, and he is 83 years old). Mr. VERNAM persuaded me to try it, and I immediately got a box of it and began to give it to our little Allie, and the effect was astonishing. She was having a chill every day; not a single chill did she have after the first dose of 'Magic Cure.'

"She had no appetite, but, after giving the medicine one day she began to eat and craved for food, and we gave it to her freely. She improved every minute, and in five days she was another child—cured. This was so astonishing and surprising to me, after full five months' treatment by our Doctor, that it need not be wondered at that I had 'Magic Cure on the Brain.'"

Question.—"Does the child stay well?"

Mr. H.—"Yes, indeed. Here, Allie!" said he, calling her by name, when in came from an adjoining room a lively little miss of ten or eleven years. "There," said Mr. H., "does she look anything like being sick."

"Not a bit," I answered.

Mr. H. went on to say: "We believe we have saved her from the very jaws of death, for a child of one of our intimate friends had only recently died with the same complaint."

Question.—"Well, Mr. HOSFORD, I can see you have good cause for your interest in the 'Magic Cure.'"

Mr. H.—"Yes; the cure of my own child so astonished me that, as I said before, I had 'Magic Cure on the Brain,' and determined to see if it was as good for man as child, told my brother-in-law, Mr. J. WESTON, who got it. He was sick with intermittent fever and had been doctored for that the greater part of a year. Before he had the second box used up he began to improve, slow but sure; and ere he had half finished the third box, he had 'Magic Cure on the Brain.' It cured him as effectually as it did our child, though not quite so quickly. His case was more stubborn, but the result was just as happy, and he has had 'Magic Cure on the Brain' ever since."

Question.—"What do I understand you by 'Magic Cure on the Brain?'"

Mr. H.—"Ha! ha! well, you must excuse me. I simply mean that I talk about it all the time. You see, I felt and do yet feel grateful that it ever came within my reach."

Question.—"All right; go ahead."

Mr. H.—"The next thing I did was to buy of Mr. TALLCOT, 96 Liberty Street, New York, a package of a dozen boxes of the 'Magic Cure,' and began operations. I looked out for people sick with Chills and Fever and I found them, and whether I knew them or not, made no difference with me. I went to them and told them of the medicine. I was not long in convincing them that it was just the thing for them; and, in cases where they were not able to pay for the medicine, I gave it to them.

"My experience from this time grew wonderfully. Not a man or child did I come across that had anything like chills or intermittent fever, but I cured them right up at once.

"The first dozen boxes did not last me long, and I got another dozen and in a short time they were gone. Then another dozen; and again and again—many other dozens—until I have had more than one hundred and fifty boxes of the 'Magic Cure.'"

Question.—"Is it possible? Did you sell them all?"

Mr. H.—"Yes, mostly. As I said, when I couldn't get pay, I gave them away."

Question.—"That is a large statement, I confess. What was your idea in following it up so long. Was it the profit in selling it?"

Mr. H.—"No; not exactly the profit in the sale of it. Though I did not lose anything, still it was nothing like pay for my time. I wanted to see what it would do. It had answered so admirably in every case I had tried, that I found it a fascination with me. Then, I may say, I desired to be kind to my fellow-man, and I certainly had a good thing for him in the 'Magic Cure;' and so made it known all I could and did all I could with it, till I have had over one hundred and fifty boxes."

Question.—"Have you had any other interesting or difficult cases?"

Mr. H.—"Yes! several—three or four important—one of which was Mr. JOHN DURING, a member of the Odd Fellows of Elizabeth, N. J.

"Two young men, members of the Lodge, boarding in the same house with me, were to sit up with their sick brother, for the second time within a week. When I inquired of them what was the matter with the man, they answered he had Typhoid Fever, was very low, and not expected to live. I asked them to take me over and let me see the sick man. They did so and I found him a great deal worse than any other case I had attempted to cure. But, believing in the 'Magic Cure' as a Specific for all Malarial Poison, I said 'Your friend is very sick; but I believe I can cure him, if you will discharge the Doctor now treating him and give him into my hands.'"

"They seemed a little incredulous, but having heard of some of my cures of Intermittent and Bilious Fevers, they communicated with the Lodge, and the Lodge sent back word for me to commence at once—and I did.

"I hardly realized my case till I had watched with the man a while. He was having from seven to ten movements of the bowels per day; skin hot, dry and very yellow; tongue parched and cracked; indeed, all very bad symptoms.

"Gave him the ' Magic Cure,' 4 pills a day. The first day he seemed no worse; the second day the movements of the bowels were less, voice stronger; third day bowels better; got him into a perspiration. The odor from his body was fearful, and so strong and disagreeable I had to disinfect the room with Carbolic Acid. The fourth day he improved every minute of the day. The fifth day he wanted to sit up. (Only think of it, five days before this man was just alive, now able to eat and relish the proper kind of food, feeling strong enough to sit up). The sixth day he was bound to sit up and he did, with no bad effects. The seventh day I pronounced him cured."

Question.—"Well! I am surprised. He got entirely well?"

Mr. H.—"Yes, he is now a robust, hearty man, laboring every day."

Question.—"Do you consider this a genuine case of Typhoid Fever?"

Mr. H.—"Yes, the Physician attending him said it was a hopeless case of Typhoid and all the Lodge of Odd Fellows well knew it was."

Cases Treated.

Mrs. Benj. DeLong, of Syracuse, N. Y., had been in poor health many years. Chronic indigestion, great nervous prostration, severe pains in the head, with hissing and roaring sounds in her ears; pain and soreness in the neck and back, with constant involuntary motion of the head from side to side.

Had been treated by the best Physicians in Central New York, without relief, and her case was pronounced hopeless.

Long acquaintance with the family prompted me to urge a trial of the " Magic Cure," and it was undertaken.

The results were slow, but improvement sure, and after about nine months the patient was cured, every symptom yielded, and she has been well now about three years.

Pneumonia, Typhoid Fever; Hemorrhage of the Lungs, Cough.

NEW YORK, February 15th, 1875.

Manly A. Burnham, 45 Grove Street,

Superintendent of Buildings for Wm. B. Astor.

Mr. B. had suffered two attacks of Pneumonia, followed by Typhoid Fever, Hemorrhage of the Lungs, Hollow Cough, Difficult Expectoration, No Appetite, Sleepless Nights, and Great Prostration; all covering a period of eighteen months. Had been attended by several of the best physicians in the city, who considered it a case of hepatized lungs, and pronounced him hopelessly incurable. A single leaf of our Little Red Book happened to fall under his eye and led to his sending for the "Magic Cure." He called this day at 96 Liberty Street, and reported himself a well man, now for five months entirely cured by eight boxes of this remedy; he will reply to all enquirers about his case.

Another Case.

Monroe, Mich., Sept. 12th, 1874.

Mr. Geo. Tallcot:

I have long suffered from Chills and Fever, Neuralgic Pains and Bilious Attacks, and had been seeking in vain for seven years to find relief. Your "Magic Cure" has proved a success; it has worked so kindly and effectively upon me I am anxious its merits should be generally known. I sent some to my son in East Saginaw, who had been suffering with Ague, and he writes me the effect was indeed magical, relief immediate. He gave some of it to a friend in the same state, and the result was the same. I am satisfied, when known, it will take the place of all other Ague remedies.

Case of Miasmatic Poison.

Combined with Poison by Ivy.

Mrs. M. C. Milligan, 137 W. 25th Street, N. Y.

Six years ago she remained at Aspinwall, on the Isthmus, two months, during the sickly season, and became poisoned by the deadly malaria, then immediately returned to New York. Her rugged constitution resisted the usual attacks of fever, but suffered great prostration, loss of flesh and strength. Five years of poor health with much suffering ensued, until on a visit to her father, Caleb Gage, at Manchester, N. H., she got poisoned by contact with the Ivy Vine. This seemed to combine with the malarial poison already in her Liver and Blood and brought her great misery. Eruptions, no appetite, increased nervous prostration, chronic indigestion, loss of memory, severe spasmodic, neuralgic pains, with an occasional chill; flesh reduced from 140 to less than 100 lbs. All treatment and all remedies failed to check or modify the symptoms, until in a hopeless condition she was advised to take the "Magic Cure," and about ten boxes were used.

Result.

Appetite and Digestion good, Pains all gone, and all her nature restored to nearly its normal condition, except flesh and strength, which latter time and care made up

Case.

Miss Mary Kelley, 330 East 63d St., New York.

Symptoms: Weariness, despondent, languid, no appetite, prostration and much constipation, headache, vertigo, cheeks red to excess, hacking cough; age eighteen; never had but one monthly period, eighteen months previous to October 1st, 1874. Her health had been excellent before; now very feeble and going rapidly with consumption, could sit up only a short time each day. Powerful cathartics were used to move the bowels. At this time the "Magic Cure" was introduced. In one week the symptoms began to improve very decidedly, and by the time four boxes of the pills had been used she was favored by another monthly period. From that time her convalescence was rapid until entirely cured, better than ever before in her life; active, buoyant and happy. Beauty returned to her cheek, and only required time to restore strength. This case is vouched for by Mrs. M. P. Butler, 121 North 9th St., Philadelphia, Pa., with whom she lived until obliged to come home for treatment. Also by Mrs. M. C. Milligan, formerly at the Appledore House, Isle of Shoals, N. H.

The Magic Cure a Beautifier!!

Young Ladies and Gentlemen who are annoyed by sallow complexions, eruptions on the skin, etc., can be made happy by the use of a few boxes of this remedy.

Indianapolis and St. Louis Railroad Co., Legal Department,
TERRE HAUTE, IND., Dec. 25, 1876.

MY DEAR SIR:

I am indebted to you for the only substantial specific for neuralgia I have been able to find. The MAGIC CURE pills you gave me, have relieved me of neuralgic pains of many years standing. I have been a great sufferer on that account, and have taken quinine enough to quicken the cold and motionless blood of a dead man. Please accept my heart-felt thanks for the kindness of your suggestion which first brought to my knowledge the existence of this superb malarial antidote, and believe me, Sir, very truly, your obt. servant, B. W. HANNA.

REV. JOHN HAWKS, Rockville, Ind.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., Feb. 20, 1877.

MR. GEO. TALLCOT.

Yours of the 16th instant received. Of course you may use the letter I wrote the Rev. John Hawks. I have recommended your MAGIC CURE to a number of my friends, and they bear uniform testimony of its efficiency. It is a wonderful remedy. It ought to make you a million of money. Every box is worth $100. to any afflicted as I have been. Use the letter sent Rev. Mr. Hawks, and this, too, if needful. Very truly,

B. W. HANNA.

MR. GEO. TALLCOT.

CUTLER, CARROLL, CO., IND.

I hereby acknowledge the receipt of a package of your MAGIC CURE, sent, as I suppose, at the suggestion of Rev. John Hawks, of Rockville, Ind. Bro. Hawks was here holding a protracted meeting. He found our son sick of Fever and Ague. He had been sick for nearly two months, and we began to feel concerned for his recovery; but Bro. Hawks gave him a box of your Ague Cure, and since his return home, has sent him a second box, a part of which he has taken. His chills are broken, and his health is so far restored that he is now up and attending to his business. I thank you, dear Sir, for this valuable remedy, and allow me to say that there is no region that I know of where such a remedy is as much needed as in Carroll County, Indiana, especially along Wild Cat Creek. I shall feel it a duty which I owe to my suffering fellow beings, to recommend your MAGIC CURE wherever I go. I am, dear Sir, yours in the bonds of a grateful remembrance.

MR. GEO. TALLCOT.

CUTLER, CARROLL CO., IND.

Yours of the 17th inst. is at hand. I reply, my letter is in your hands; publish such portion as may suit your purpose, and circulate as freely as you may deem proper, in Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, and Missouri, where I am known among Presbyterians as an humble minister of Christ. Yours very truly,

REV. W. M. STRYKER.

MERCHANT'S NATIONAL BANK, New Haven, Conn., Feb. 16, 1874.

"Geo. Tallcot, Esq.,

"Dear Sir :—Three of my children were severely attacked last spring with Chills and Fever. We called our Family Physician, who did what he could for them, but without any permanent effect; we also tried several ague remedies without any relief. Through the kind influence of Mr. Geo. F. Robinson, of this city, we were induced to try your 'Magic Cure;' the effect was truly magical. Our children have not had a chill since the first dose given them, and they are now entirely well. We would not be without the remedy on any account.

Respectfully Yours,

J. C. BRADLEY, Cashier."

Paris Exposition.

Tourists who contemplate visiting the Paris Exposition, especially if they extend their journey to Rome, and other Malarial points on the Continent, should provide themselves with a package of the Magic Cure. The sense of security thus afforded against attacks by those low malarial fevers, is worth a hundred times its cost.

Ship Masters should never go to sea without a supply of this medicine. Bilge water fevers, Rheumatism, &c., are cured by it; all danger of contagion at Southern and South American ports is easily averted, or cured if a tacked. Numerous reports have been made to us by commanders and owners, in our Merchant marine, sustaining these allegations.

Capt. Treadway, of the U. S. Revenue Steamer Boutwell, was with his officers enabled to pass unharmed through the Yellow Fever epidemics of the past two years, at Savannah and Fernandina. They used the Magic Cure as a preventive.

Chief Engineer Sewell, U. S. N., Brooklyn, is a strong advocate of the Magic Cure, also Eppinger, Russell & Co., Shippers, 160 Water Street, N. Y.

Mr. Hill, Chief Engineer of one of the Old Dominion Line Steamers, has had valuable experience with the Magic Cure.

Recapitulation.

The developments of Malarial Poison, as we say elsewhere, cover a wide field, are felt in nearly every organ of the body suggesting the presence of various diseases, which are in reality only symptoms of a deranged general condition produced by the growth and activity of this Poison Germ in the blood.

You speak of Biliousness,	That's what we mean
You complain of Rheumatism,	That's what we mean
You suffer with Neuralgia,	That's what we mean
Bilious and Typhoid Fevers,	These are what we mean
Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia,	These are what we mean
Costiveness, Piles, Gout,	These are what we mean
Spring Sickness, Headache,	These are what we mean
Short Breath, Weak Lungs, Cough, Female Weaknesses.	These are what we mean

We mean all these and more are effects of the Germ Poison!

We attack the Cause direct and thus greatly simplify the treatment of disease.

We hear of a few "Doctors" in the country who sought to check the rising popularity of the Magic Cure by reporting it contained Arsenic, Strychnine, etc. Now! altho' they themselves often give those deadly poisons to their patients, I offer a reward of $500 to any person who will find these or any other poison in the Magic Cure!!!

Over One Hundred Thousand

Cases have been treated successfully with the "Magic Cure." Many of these have exhibited peculiar developments, of almost every variety of disease, which had defied all previous medical efforts.

In this great number and variety of cases, we have accumulated an experience with Malaria that is invaluable, and we invite any who may desire, to call, and receive advice free.

If our remedy cannot be procured of your Druggists, send to us by mail and we will return it, post paid, on receipt of price, $1 per box, 6 boxes $5, or 12 boxes $9
Half boxes 50 cents each.

Our medicine is cheap because it cures when every other has failed!!!

Offices and Store, 191 Fulton Street, N. Y.

The Magic Cure.

This Remedy is a certain specific for Chills and Fever, and a full substitute for Quinine.

But it also has great value as a curative for advanced stages of Malarial Disease.

Persons who have long been invalids and much afflicted are relieved, even when the precise nature of their difficulties could not be ascertained, and all other medicine failed.

Directions.

For ordinary types of Chills and Fever, take one pill four times a day (half an hour before eating and one at bedtime).

Nearly all such cases will be relieved in twenty-four hours, but the pills should be continued about two weeks to prevent a relapse.

If the symptoms prove obstinate, give two pills at each dose, three to four times a day, and persevere a longer time, for success is sure.

With the most complicated, obstinate cases, the cure is a question only of perseverance.

For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Dumb Ague, Billousness, and other advanced stages of the disease, treat the same as for Chills, except you must persevere a much longer time.

Nausea.—When a patient suffers from this or frequent vomiting, and cannot keep a whole pill down, give one quarter to half a pill. If this is thrown up give another piece and another, until the vomiting is less frequent, when it will soon subside entirely, then proceed with four or six pills per day; once this barrier is broken down the sufferer enjoys rapid convalescence.

THE BOWELS.—The effect of the Magic Cure upon the bowels is excellent. Although not a cathartic, it sometimes loosens the bowels, and the discharge is most beneficial, until a natural condition is reached, and the constipation is broken up. If the looseness continues too long and frequent, producing prostration, take pure Grape Wine or Brandy in small doses every three hours.

For Chronic Diarrhoea use the same treatment. In all cases where there is much prostration of strength it is advised to use some kind of pure spirits, in teaspoon doses, repeated often.

Avoid fatigue during treatment.

The Magic Cure is the best friend of the female sex ever discovered in the great medicine chest of the world, and safe for them in any condition.

The Magic Cure Pills are not sugar coated!
