On October 27, 1932, the United States attorney for the Southern District of Ohio, acting upon a report by the Secretary of Agriculture, filed in the District Court of the United States for the district aforesaid a libel praying seizure and condemnation of 750 cases of tomato puree, remaining in the unbroken cases at Cincinnati, Ohio, alleging that the article had been shipped in interstate commerce in various consignments between the dates of August 18, 1932, and October 20, 1932, by Butterfield Canning Co., from Muncie, Ind., to Cincinnati, Ohio, and charging adulteration in violation of the Food and Drugs Act. The article was labeled in part: (Cans) "Butterfield Brand Puree of Tomatoes * * * Guaranteed to comply with all the requirements of the National Food Laws Packed by Butterfield Canning Co. On November 14, 1932, the Butterfield Canning Co., Muncie, Ind., appeared and filed a claim for so much of the product as was not decomposed, and consented to the entry of a decree condemning the decomposed portion. On November 22, 1932, judgment was entered, ordering that the product be released to the claimant upon the payment of costs and the execution of a bond in the sum of $1,400, conditioned that it should not be sold or otherwise disposed of contrary to the law. It was further ordered that the goods be sorted to separate the good portion from the remainder, that the portion found not decomposed be released to the claimant, and that the bad portion be destroyed or disposed of by the marshal in such manner as might best serve the public interest.
