PREFACE

The Historical Records Survey was initiated on a Nation-wide basis in January 1936 under the direction of Dr. Luther H. Evans. It operated as a Federally sponsored project until 1939 when the Federal Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of that year required that all units of the project be sponsored locally. Since that time the Secretary of State has been official sponsor of the project in the State of Idaho. In March 1940 Dr. Evans was called to the Library of Congress and was succeeded as director of the Historical Records Survey by Sargent B. Child. The Survey, a project of the Work Projects Administration operates under the Research and Records Programs through the Division of Community Service Programs of which Mrs. Florence Korr, Assistant Commissioner, is in charge.

As a result of the national emergency, and later the actual declaration of war, the need and demand for information as to where Vital Statistics records can be found, and for what periods, has greatly increased. The Director of The Census has emphasized the importance of making available the work in Vital Statistics done by Historical Records Survey Projects. Many government departments and agencies, as well as business corporations holding government contracts, and others need this information. Accordingly the Historical Records Survey Project in each State has been requested to assemble and edit and put out in mimeograph book form its material on Vital Statistics records.

This volume, the eleventh book published by the Idaho project, covers public Vital Statistics records of the forty-four counties of Idaho and of the State Bureau of Vital Statistics. Under the separate headings of births, deaths, marriages, and divorces, the records, both county and State, are listed and described. Also there are essays discussing the records and their background of legislative act and executive order. For the information and convenience of those consulting this volume there has been inserted an outline map of the counties of Idaho, and a tabulation of the counties and county seats and their populations, and an index of the records.

The publications of the Historical Records Survey have been issued for free distribution to a limited national mailing list of libraries and government agencies and to certain State and local officials and libraries in Idaho. This Guide to Public Vital Statistics will be distributed also to all State Vital Statistics Bureaus in the United States and requests from government contractors and others will be met in so far as the necessarily limited edition will permit. Requests should be addressed to Allen B. Eaton, State Supervisor, Historical Records Survey Project, Boise, Idaho.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS

The subject of births and deaths in Idaho is largely covered by the same code of laws. This is especially true with respect to the laws pertaining to the registration of births and deaths and the records required to be kept. They are classified as "Vital Statistics," a subtitle which appears in the Idaho Code Annotated under the main title, "Health and Safety." (I.C.A. 1932, Title 38.) The legal and historical background of birth and death records as public records is the same. Laws pertaining to the keeping of these records were enacted at the same time. Changes in the recording procedure made with respect to one were also made with respect to the other. For these reasons it seemed simpler and more logical to treat of them together rather than discuss them in separate essays.

The recording of information concerning births and deaths was not legally recognized as a public responsibility until 1907. Prior to this time, certain statistical information had been kept by some of the churches, also some incomplete records were kept by the undertakers and physicians and probably in some instances, by midwives. It is well known that many of the churches have kept in the past and still keep records of baptisms from which can be derived information as to date of birth, name and residence of parents and other related information. The extent and completeness of this information is not known. At best, it is probably fragmentary. In the first instance, only a certain percent of the population belongs to any church. This fact precludes the possibility of any one baptismal record covering more than a part of the births. The same holds true of death records which are kept by some of the churches. While some undertakers have probably kept memorandum information concerning deceased persons, the extent of this is not known. The permanent preservation of any of these memorandum records is doubtful.

The first laws requiring a public record to be made of births and deaths appeared in the legislation designed to set up a State Board of Health with powers and duties pertaining to the preservation of health throughout the State. It was enacted by the Ninth State Legislature in 1907. The keeping of records of births and deaths was made, in the first instance, a responsibility of physicians and professional midwives who attended at the birth of any child; and of any physician, clergyman, coroner, or undertaker who had the care of a person in his last sickness or charge of arrangements for his burial (L.S.I. 1907, secs. 10, 11, p. 186). Certain information was required to be kept by the above mentioned persons and quarterly reports made to the county recorder (ibid., sec. 12). The recorder, in turn, was required to keep separate registers known as "Register of Births" and "Register of Deaths," in which the information contained in the quarterly reports must be entered (ibid., sec. 13). From the information contained in these registers, he was required to make reports to the State Board of Health at the end of each quarter (ibid., sec. 14) and the law provided that the Secretary of the Board should be made Register of Vital Statistics (ibid., sec. 17, p. 187).

Births and Deaths

The law covering the registration of births and deaths was changed in 1911, relieving the county recorder of all responsibility for the keeping of birth and death records and for the making of reports to the State Department of Health concerning the same. The new law, which is in effect at the present time in substantially the same form as when it was enacted in 1911, gave the State Board of Health sole authority, under the provisions of the law, in the matter of registration of births and deaths; also the State Board of Health was given authority to establish a Bureau of Vital Statistics. (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, pp. 631-632; I.C.A. 1932, title 38, ch. 2.) Although the laws concerning the registration of births and deaths have not changed materially since 1911, the agency which administers the laws has undergone some changes. The State Board of Health was abolished in 1919 (L.S.I. 1919, ch. 8, art. 4, sec. 38, p. 66) and its powers and responsibilities were transferred to a newly created State Department of Public Welfare (L.S.I. 1919, art. 3, sec. 35, p. 63). In 1941 the State Department of Public Welfare was abolished (L.S.I. 1941, ch. 82, p. 151) and many of its duties and powers including the registration of births and deaths were transferred to a newly created State Department of Public Health (L.S.I. 1941, ch. 196, p. 478). A Bureau of Vital Statistics has been created in the State Department of Public Health by executive order. All matters relating to births and deaths are handled through this bureau.

Under the present law the State Department of Public Health has full charge of the registration of births and deaths. It must devise the details of registration, prepare the necessary forms and blanks for obtaining and preserving the statistical data, and assume general responsibility for the enforcement of the law throughout the State (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 1, p. 632; I.C.A. 1932, 38-201). Legal provision is made for dividing the State into registration districts and the appointing of local registrars of births and deaths in each district. Under the provisions of the law, each city and incorporated village is designated as a primary registration district. The State Department of Public Health has been given authority to divide the rural areas into convenient rural registration districts (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 3, p. 633; I.C.A. 1932, 38-202) and to appoint local registrars for these districts as well as for the city and village districts (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 4, p. 633; I.C.A. 1932, 38-203). At the present time the State is divided into 84 registration districts.

Physicians and midwives are primarily responsible for making certificates of births to the local registrars. If there is no physician or midwife in attendance, it then becomes the duty of the father, mother, nurse, attendant, or manager or superintendent of a hospital, or any other person present and having knowledge of the birth, to report the same to the local registrar of the district in which the birth occurs. When such report is made, it is the duty of the local registrar to secure the necessary information to make a proper certificate of birth such as would be made by a physician or midwife if either were in attendance at the time of the birth. (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 13, p. 638; I.C.A. 1932, 38-214.) Certain definite information is required to be included in the birth certificate. It must contain the following items: 1. The place of birth including name of the State, county, township or town, village or city the ward, street and house number, or name of the hospital or other institution in which a child is born, if born in such institution. 2. The full name of the child. If the child has not been named at the time the certificate is made out, the space must be left blank and filled in later on the basis of information received in a supplemental report which is required by law to be filed. 3. The sex of the child. 4. Whether a twin, triplet or other plural birth. 5. Whether legitimate or illegitimate. 6. Full name of the father. 7. Residence of the father. 8. Color or race of the father. 9. Birthplace of the father. 10. Age of the father at last birthday. 11. Occupation of the father. 12. Maiden name of the mother. 13. Residence of the mother. 14. Color or race of the mother. 15. Birthplace of the mother. 16. Age of the mother at last birth date. 17. Occupation of the mother. 18. Number of children of this mother; and number of children of this mother now living. (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec.14, p. 639; I.C.A. 1932, 38-215.)

The form of birth certificate used by the Department of Public Health conforms to the law in most respects. It is a little more inclusive; some information not required by law is called for in the certificate. The law is defective in some respects. Strange as it may seem no provision is made for including the birth date as part of the information required. However, this information is included in the birth certificate in use. Certainly no certificate would be complete without it. Certain information for statistical purposes not related to births, and not required by law, is included in the birth certificate form now in use. The certificate provides for the reporting of information on the length of time the mother has resided in Idaho. This is for the purpose of assembling statistical information on population movements, especially with reference to migration to Idaho.

A bill was enacted in 1937 making provision for the registration of births which occurred prior to 1911 or which occurred subsequent to that date but were not recorded. In all such cases, the local registrars have authority to receive certificates of birth and file the same with the Bureau of Vital Statistics (L.S.I. 1937, ch. 139, sec. 4, p. 225). The certificate used is substantially the same as that used to report and record current births. In addition to the formal certificate usually filled in and signed by a physician or midwife, there is an affidavit form appended which may be filled in and signed by some person other than a physician or midwife who has knowledge of the requisite facts concerning the birth of an applicant for a certificate. The affiant states that he or she is in possession of such vital knowledge and that the affidavit is being made by him because the person who attended at the birth is dead or cannot be located.

Under the law, the certificate is supposed to be filed with the local registrar and sent to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the regular way as hereinafter described. But the demand for these delayed regis-

It must contain the following items: 1. The full name of the child. 3. Whether child has not been named at the time the certificate is made out. 4. The sex of the child. 5. Whether child is registered by birth or information received in a supplemental report which is required by law to be filed. 6. The sex of the child. 7. Whether child is registered by other means. 8. Whether registered or illegitimate. 9. Full name of the father. 10. Residence of the father. 11. Color or race of the father. 12. Occupation of the father. 13. Age of the father at last birthday. 14. Number of children of this mother; and number of children of this mother now living. (U.S.C. 1931, ch. 191, sec. 14, p. 689; I.C.A. 1932, 88-218.)

The form of birth certificate used by the Department of Public Health conforms to the law in most respects. It is a little more inclusive; some information not required by law is called for in the certificate. The law is defective in some respects. Strange as it may seem no provision is made for including the birth date as part of the information required. However, this information is included in the birth certificate in use. Certainly certificates would be complete without it. Certain information for statistical purposes not related to births, and not required by law, is included in the birth certificate form now in use. The certificate provides for the reporting of information on the length of time the mother has resided in Idaho. This is for the purpose of assembling statistical information on population movements, especially with reference to migration to Idaho.

A bill was enacted in 1931 making provision for the registration of births which occurred prior to 1911 or which occurred subsequent to that date but were not recorded. In all such cases, the local registrars have authority to receive certificates of birth and file the same with the Bureau of Vital Statistics. (U.S.C. 1931, ch. 191, sec. 4, p. 226). The certificate used is substantially the same as that used to report and record current births. In addition to the formal certificate usually filed in and signed by a physician or midwife, there is an affidavit form sponsored, whether by the physician or midwife, or by some person other than a physician or midwife who has knowledge of the registrars facts concerning the birth of an applicant for a certificate. The affidavit states that he or she is in possession of such vital knowledge and that the affidavit is being made by him because the person who attended at the birth is dead or cannot be located.

Under the law, the certificate is supposed to be filed with the local registrar and sent to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the regular way as heretofore described. But the demand for these delayed registrations has been so great that the Bureau of Vital Statistics has undertaken the task of making the delayed registration in its office and issuing the certificate from there to avoid the delay of local registration and reporting.

In the case of death the funeral director is responsible for obtaining and filing the death certificate with the local registrar. It is his duty to obtain the general statistical information, such as correct name, residence, place of death, etc., from any one qualified to furnish it, placing it on the certificate and requiring the informant to sign his name to it. Then he must present the certificate to the attending physician if there be one and, if not, to the health officer or the coroner and have him supply the medical information as to the cause of death such as disease, accident, suicide, etc. or other contributing factors. He must also require the person furnishing this information to attach his signature to it in the proper place on the certificate. Finally the funeral director must attach his own signature to the certificate and file it with the local registrar. (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 9, p. 637; I.C.A. 1932, 38-208.) Under the law, the detailed information to be furnished on each death certificate, by the persons above mentioned, is as follows: 1. Place of death, including State, County, township, city, the ward, the street and house number. If the deceased was in a hospital or other institution at the time of his death, the name of the hospital or institution is given instead of the street and house number. 2. Full name of decedent. If the deceased is an unnamed child, the family name must be given, preceded by the word "unnamed." 3. Sex. 4. Color or race. 5. Marital status. 6. Date of death, showing the month, day and year. 7. Age in years, months and days. 8. Name of State or foreign country in which born. 9. Name of father. 10. Birthplace of father, State or foreign country. 11. Maiden name of mother. 12. Birthplace of mother. 13. Occupation of deceased. 14. Signature and address of informant. 15. Year, month and day of death. 16. Statement of attending physician. 17. Cause or contributing causes of death. 18. Signature and address of person furnishing the medical information. 19. Length of residence at place of death and in the State of Idaho. 20. Place of burial or removal. 21. Date of burial or removal. 22. Signature and address of funeral director. 23. Official signature of the registrar, with the date when the certificate was filed and the registration number. (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 7, p. 635; I.C.A. 1932, 38-206.)

The death certificate now in use in Idaho, like the birth certificate, conforms to the requirements of the law but contains additional statistical information not relating directly to the death of the deceased or required by the law. This includes the social security number, whether or not the deceased was a war veteran and, if so, of what war, name and age of the surviving spouse, if there be one, whether the deceased in his lifetime lived in the city or the country, and, if foreign born, how long the deceased had lived in the United States prior to his death.

Births and Deaths

Thus far the matter of reporting births and deaths by physicians, midwives, funeral directors or others required under the law to make such reports, has been discussed without reference to kinds of records to be kept and by whom.

When a certificate of birth or death is filed with the local registrar, it is his duty to ascertain its correctness. If incomplete or unsatisfactory in any respect, it is his duty to see to it that the information is made complete and correct and satisfactory in form. He is required to give a serial number to each birth and death certificate commencing in each case with number one at the beginning of each year. The birth and death certificates must be numbered and recorded separately. The local registrar must also note the date of receipt of each certificate and sign his name thereon. He is required to make an exact copy of each certificate in a book kept for that purpose, and on the tenth day of each month he must forward the original certificates to the Bureau of Vital Statistics. If no births or deaths have been reported to a local registrar in any month, then he must notify the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the fact that there were no registrations for that particular month. (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 19, p. 641; I.C.A. 1932, 38-220.) For each birth or death certificate filed with any local registrar and reported by him to the Bureau of Vital Statistics, he is entitled to receive a fee of twenty-five cents. If no certificates were filed with him in any monthly reporting period, he is entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents for reporting that fact to the Bureau. If the registration district is a city or incorporated village, the treasurer of the city or village makes payment for all certificates when the amount has been properly certified to him by the State Department of Health; registrars for other districts are paid by the treasurer of the county in which the registration district is located upon similar certification by the Department. (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 20, p. 642; I.C.A. 1932, 38-221.)

Provision was made in 1937 for the re-registration of children who have been adopted and of illegitimate children who have become legitimate by the subsequent marriage of the father and mother. In the former case, when a decree of adoption has been issued by the district court, a certified copy of the decree must be filed with the Bureau of Vital Statistics upon a form provided for that purpose. Upon receipt of such copy, the Bureau of Vital Statistics is required to issue a birth certificate bearing the name of the newly adopted child under its newly adopted name. In the latter instance, if the parents of an illegitimate child are subsequently married, they may file an affidavit to that effect with the Bureau of Vital Statistics. Upon receipt of this affidavit, the Bureau is required to issue a birth certificate bearing the name of the child, as shown by the affidavit, the names of the parents, sex of child, date and place of birth of child. In both instances the original certificates are retired to a confidential file and only the re-issued certificates are available to the public. (L.S.I. 1937, ch. 139, sec. 1, 2. pp. 224-225.)

Births and Deaths

The Bureau of Vital Statistics is not required by any law to follow any prescribed method of recording. Since original certificates of birth and death are filed with the Bureau, it is logical to expect these to be the basis of all records kept by it. The adequacy and completeness of these records depend largely upon the thoroughness with which the physicians, and others responsible for making the original certificates, make and file them with the local registrars. This in turn depends on the exactness with which the local registrars enforce the provisions of the law requiring physicians and others to file these reports and finally upon the wisdom of the Department of Health in selecting and appointing local registrars. The human element is of course an important factor. Laxity in the matter of reporting by physicians and others may cause serious defects in the whole system. Since there are 84 different registration districts in the State and many times that number of persons who are responsible for making and filing the original certificates, without the utmost care the resultant records would be neither accurate nor complete.

Any one desiring a birth or death certificate must apply to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the State Department of Public Health located in the Capitol Building in Boise. The Bureau is required to furnish a certified copy of either a birth or death certificate when requested to do so. It is also required to search its files for any information which it may have concerning births or deaths. For each certified copy of a birth or death certificate the Bureau is entitled to a fee of fifty cents. If a search is made but no birth or death certificate issued, the Bureau is entitled to make a charge of fifty cents per hour or any fraction thereof for the time consumed. However, an exception is made in respect to birth certificates of children who are first entering school; the Bureau is required to furnish birth certificates of such children to parents and school officials free of charge. (L.S.I. 1911, ch. 191, sec. 21, p. 642; I.C.A. 1932, 38-222.)

The Bureau of Vital Statistics is not required by any law to follow any prescribed method of recording. Since original certificates of birth and death are filed with the Bureau, it is logical to expect those to be the basis of all reports made by it. The accuracy and completeness of these reports depend largely upon the thoroughness with which the registrars and others responsible for making the original certificates, birth and death, conform with the local registers. This is true because in the instances where the local registers contain the provisions of the law regarding physicians and others in this State reports are usually given the attention of the Department of Health in selecting and appointing local registrars. The human element is of course a important factor, largely in the matter of reporting by physicians and others who make entries in the birth system. Since there are so different registration districts in the State and many times that number of persons who are responsible for making and filing the original certificates, without the records with the State, certain records would be rather complete and complete.

Any one holding a birth or death certificate must apply to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the State Department of Health if a copy located in the Central Building in Salem. The Bureau is required to furnish a certified copy of either a birth or death certificate when requested to do so. It is also required to return the files for any information which it may have concerning births or deaths. For each certified copy of a birth or death certificate the Bureau is entitled to a fee of fifty cents. If a person is asked for a birth or death certificate, the Bureau is entitled to take a charge of fifty cents per hour or any fraction thereof for the time consumed. However, an exception is made in regard to birth certificates of children who are first entering school; the Bureau is required to furnish birth certificates of such children to parents and school officials free of charge. (Public Law 181, sec. 21, 1951, 54 Stat. 28-312.)

MARRIAGES

There were laws concerning marriages and marriage records enacted by the first Territorial Legislative Assembly in 1864. At this time, laws and records pertaining to marriage were not for statistical purposes. Marriage and divorce were considered domestic relations. The marriage laws were regulatory and at the same time records were necessary because the marriage relationship, while personal, involved property rights of the man and wife as well as the children born of the union. While marriage and divorce are classified in the Idaho Code Annotated under the heading "Domestic Relations," (I.C.A., 1932, Title 31) the laws governing each are separate and distinct. For that reason they are being treated in separate essays.

Under the law marriage is considered a personal relation arising out of a civil contract to which the consent of the parties is necessary. However, consent alone will not constitute marriage. It must be followed by ecclesiastical or civil ceremony or by a mutual assumption of marital rights and obligations. (L.T.I. 1876-77, sec. 1, p. 24; I.C.A. 1932, 31-201.)

According to the provisions of this law a marriage need not be initiated by a formal marriage ceremony. The contract constitutes a marriage if the parties enjoy the rights and assume the obligations of marriage. It is quite impossible to determine the number of marriages that are consummated in this way because few if any, records are made of them. The first Territorial Legislative Assembly made provision for books in which to record certificates issued by persons performing marriage ceremonies and also marriage contracts made by individuals (L.T.I. 1863-64, sec. 70, p. 488; I.C.A. 1932, 30-1902). But under the law, the marriage contract does not need to be a written contract and, even if it were a written contract, there is no compulsion about making a public record of it. Some have been recorded. Many more probably have not been recorded.

To certain persons was delegated the authority to perform marriage ceremonies and they were required to keep a record of the marriages performed and to make to the proper county officer reports based on these records. Under the present law, which is substantially the same as when enacted in 1864, marriages may be solemnized by a Justice of the Supreme Court, a district or probate judge, a justice of the peace, a mayor, the Governor of the State, a priest, or minister of the gospel of any denomination (L.T.I. 1863-64, sec. 4, p. 613; I.C.A. 1932, 31-303). Between 1864 and 1895, with the exception of two years, this law was sufficient authorization to the above designated persons to perform marriage ceremonies without a separate license having been issued in each case. A law was enacted in 1875 requiring that an individual license be issued authorizing the solemnization of each marriage (L.T.I. 1874-75, sec. 8, p. 643) but was repealed in 1877 (L.T.I. 1876-77, sec. 8, p. 25). A similar law, requiring that persons authorized by law to perform marriage ceremonies must not do so until the contracting parties have presented the required license to marry, was re-enacted in 1895 and remains on the statute books at the present time (I.C.A. 1932, 31-401).

Marriages

The record one can expect to find in the various counties of the period previous to 1895 is in the nature of a certificate issued by the person performing a marriage ceremony to the effect that such a ceremony was performed.

All persons authorized to perform marriage ceremonies were required to make a record of each marriage and make and deliver to the proper county officer a certificate containing certain information concerning the marriage. The initial law designated the county recorder as the officer to whom the certificate was to be delivered and by whom it must be recorded, (L.T.I. 1863-64, sec. 9, p. 614.) A law was enacted in 1889 requiring that the certificate be delivered to the probate judge instead of the recorder and recorded by him (L.T.I. 1888-89, sec. 1, p. 44). The records of the recorder's office are reasonably complete as to date coverage but that by no means indicates that all marriages performed within the period were reported. Marriage records have been found only in some of the probate judges' offices. The lack of these in some counties does not necessarily mean that the record was not made and preserved. It is possible that the probate judges took over and continued the recorders' records in 1889 and delivered these back to the recorder when the law changed in 1895, reinvesting the recorder with the duty and authority to make and keep this type of marriage record. The county offices are the most reliable source of information on marriages. While the law required persons performing marriage ceremonies to keep a record of them previous to 1895, it is not known how closely the law was observed or what percent.

In 1895 persons solemnizing marriages were relieved of the responsibility of keeping marriage records, and were not again required to keep them until 1907, as will appear later. The law enacted in 1895 requires that the parties who desire to marry must first procure a license from the county recorder. When application is made for a marriage license, it becomes the duty of the recorder to determine whether or not the parties are competent to marry. If he is in doubt about their competency, he must require them to make an affidavit to the effect that they are competent. If it appears from the affidavit that the parties are eligible under the law to marry, the recorder must issue the license. The affidavit made by the parties is the recorder's protection against prosecution if it should be discovered later that the parties were not competent to marry. (L.S.I. 1895, sec. 3, p. 166; L.C.A. 1932, 31-403; am. L.S.I. 1933, ch. 8, p. 8.) It is the general practice for the recorder to require all applicants for marriage licenses to swear to the affidavit above referred to whether he knows much or little or nothing about the parties. This application and affidavit is in a form uniform throughout the State and covers the following points: That he has been made acquainted with the laws governing marriage; that both he and the party he intends to marry are over the age of eighteen years; that the mutual consent of the parties to the marriage was gained without fraud or duress; that they are not related to each other in any degree which under the law would render them incompetent to marry; that neither of them has a lawful husband or wife at the time application is being made; that neither of them has been divorced within a period of less than six months; and that he knows of no other reason why the parties named in the affidavit are not legally competent to marry. The applicant is required to sign and swear to the truth of his affidavit and his signature is acknowledged by the recorder.

The license issued by the recorder is directed to any judge, justice of the peace or other official who is eligible under the law to perform marriage ceremonies. It authorizes the individual to whom presented to perform the marriage ceremony between the parties named in the license unless he knows some impediment which would prevent a legal marriage.

The person performing the ceremony is required to make a certificate to the effect that he has performed the marriage ceremony between certain named persons on a certain date and return the certificate and the license to the office of the recorder who issued the license (L.S.I. 1895, sec. 2, p.166; I.C.A. 1932, 31-402). The license and the certificate are on the same sheet. When returned to the recorder, he must record them in a book kept for that purpose (L.S.I. 1895, sec. 6, p. 166; I.C.A. 1932, 31-407). The original licenses and certificates are returned to the parties who have contracted the marriage.

A law enacted in 1907 creating a State Board of Health primarily for the purpose of and with powers to take certain necessary precautions to preserve the health of the general public in the State (L.S.I. 1907, p. 182). It was given authority to receive marriage reports from the various county recorders at the end of each quarter but was not required to keep any particular kind of record of them or even required to preserve the reports. While the State Board had no power to require that such reports be made nevertheless as will appear later the recorder is required to make the reports. However, this marks the beginning of a policy of assembling marriage data from the various counties at a central point for statistical purposes.

The original State Board of Health was abolished in 1919 (L.S.I. 1919, ch. 8, art. 4, sec. 38, p. 66) and its duties were transferred to a State Department of Public Welfare (L.S.I. 1919, ch. 8, art. 1, sec. 2, p. 44; and art. 3, sec. 35, p. 63); this in turn was abolished in 1941 and its duties and powers divided up between a State Department of Charitable Institutions, A State Department of Public Assistance and a State Department of Public Health (L.S.I. 1941, ch. 82, p. 151; and ch. 196, p. 478). A Bureau of Vital Statistics was created in the State Department of Public Health by executive order.

The duty of receiving reports on the marriages performed in each county was transferred to the State Department of Public Health when the break-up of powers and duties of the Department of Public Welfare occurred. But, like the State Board of Health and the State Department of Public Welfare, it has no specific authority to compel marriage reports to be made nor any legal obligation to preserve the reports when they are received or make permanent record of them. As will be observed from the listing of records below, some State records are being kept.

Marriages

The primary responsibility for assembling marriage data for statistical purposes resides with the counties. All information must be acquired from them. If an inquiry is directed to the Bureau of Vital Statistics, it will be referred back to the county where the marriage was performed.

Every person who performs a marriage ceremony must keep a register of the time and place of each marriage, the residence, the names in full, the place of birth, the age of each party and their marital status i.e., whether or not they were married before and if so whether or not divorced (L.S.I. 1907, sec. 9, p. 182; I.C.A. 1932, 38-227). All persons performing marriages must file a certified copy of their registers with the recorder each quarter (L.S.I. 1907, sec. 12, p. 182; I.C.A. 1932, 38-229). The recorder is required to keep a marriage register, similar in form to the registers kept by the persons performing the marriage ceremonies, in which he must enter the reports received each quarter from the various persons officiating at marriages (L.S.I. 1907, sec. 13, p. 182; I.C.A. 1932, 38-229). He in turn must make an abstract of his register prepared in the manner prescribed in the instructions of the State Department of Public Health and on forms provided by the Department, and transmit a copy to the Bureau of Vital Statistics at the end of each quarter (L.S.I. 1907, sec. 14, p. 182; I.C.A. 1932, 38-230).

Disregarding the records required to be kept by the persons performing marriage ceremonies, which may or may not be complete, we have two principal records required to be kept in each county, namely, the marriage register in which are entered the quarterly reports received from the various persons performing marriage ceremonies in the county and the record of licenses and certificates made from the original documents returned to the recorder by persons authorized to solemnize marriages. The adequacy of these records depends on the accurateness with which the reports are made from the field and the recording efficiency in the recorder's office. According to an investigation made by the Bureau of Vital Statistics in 1940, there was a discrepancy of 8% between the number of licenses issued and returned to the county recorder for record and the number of marriages reported to the Bureau by the various county recorders. There were 9,638 licenses issued and returned for record and 8,892 marriages reported as performed during the year.

The county recorder is the only person who has any authority or obligation to make certified copies of his marriage records. He is required to make searches for, and certified copies of any instrument, including instruments pertaining to marriages filed or recorded in his office (I.C.A. 1932, 30-1916). He is allowed to charge the sum of $1.00 for a certified copy of his marriage records (L.S.I. 1907, sec. 15, p. 182; I.C.A. 1932, 38-231).

DIVORCES

Divorce, like marriage, is considered in the Idaho Code Annotated under the head of "Domestic Relations." Annulment of marriages is in the same legal category as divorce. (I.C.A. 1932, title 31.) The theoretical difference is that the action to annul is based on the fact that one or both of the contracting parties were incompetent to marry under the law, while divorce actions are instituted on the theory that though the marriage was legal, the presence of certain circumstances has rendered it unsuccessful and action has been instituted to terminate the contract. For statistical purposes it would appear that annulled marriages should be considered as a deduction from total marriages performed rather than as an addition to divorces granted. However, the matter of statistics on divorces and annulments has not been treated under the law. The laws relative to divorce and annulment determine the relationship of the parties as regards property and offspring. It follows therefore that the records which are kept reflect this legal approach to the subject.

The district court was given jurisdiction in divorce cases by an act passed by the first Territorial Legislative Assembly in 1864 (L.T.I. 1863-64, sec. 22, p. 616). This jurisdiction was not made exclusive until 1867 (L.T.I. 1866-67, ch. 10, sec. 1, p. 69). In the interim, the Legislative Assembly granted some divorces, the records of which are found in the Territorial Session Laws of this period. Strangely enough even after 1867, when exclusive jurisdiction had been given to the court, the Territorial Legislative Assembly introduced and passed a few bills granting divorces to certain parties. A specific example of this was the divorce by legislative enactment of Mary A. and Geo. Chapman (L.T.I. 1870-71, p. 81).

Divorce and annulment actions are filed in the district court in the same manner as other civil cases. The clerk of the district or his deputy enters the action on the records on the basis of a complaint which has been presented. The action goes through the court in the regular manner and the judgment of the court is recorded in a judgment book for which legal provision is made (L.T.I. 1863-64, title 5, ch. 8, sec. 204; I.C.A. 1932, 7-1105). There are no separate records kept for divorce judgments. All civil judgments are recorded in the same series. No provision has been made for a central agency to which to report divorce and annulment cases for statistical purposes. The only records for which legal provision has been made are scattered throughout the various counties. It will be noted that in some instances the period covered by the judgment book antedates the creation of the county. This is accounted for by transcriptions over the earlier period but it does not necessarily mean that decrees of divorce have been transcribed, as the necessity of transcriptions was based on a record of judgments that were still unsatisfied or that affected or might affect the title to real estate.

The Bureau of Vital Statistics in Idaho has been collecting data from the various counties on the number of divorce cases filed in the district courts since 1937. Inquiries are sent to the clerk of the Reviews, like marriage, is considered in the Hindu Code Commission under the head of "Marriage Relations". Amendment of marriage is in the same legal category as divorce. (1,0,0,1, 1952, 21). The theoretical difference is that the action to annul is based on the fact that one or both of the contracting parties were incompetent to marry under the law, while divorce actions are instituted on the theory that though the marriage was legal, the presence of certain circumstances has rendered it unsuccessful and action has been instituted to terminate the contract. For statutory purposes it would appear that annulled marriages should be considered as a dissolution from total marriages performed rather than as an addition to divorce grounds. However, the matter of annulment on divorce and annulment has not been treated under the law, the laws relative to divorce and annulment bearing the relationship of the parties as regards property and offspring. It follows therefore that the grounds which are laid out in this legal approach to the subject.

REVIEWS

The divorce court was given jurisdiction in divorce cases by an act passed by the first Provincial Legislative Assembly in 1947 (1,1,1, 1947-48, sec. 22, p. 226). This jurisdiction was not made exclusive until 1957 (1,1,1, 1956-57, p. 10, sec. 1, p. 66). In the interim, the legislative Assembly granted some divorce, the records of which are found in the Provincial Gazette for this period. Broadly enough even after 1957, when exclusive jurisdiction had been given to the court, the Provincial Legislative Assembly introduced and passed a law which granted divorce to certain parties. A specific example of this was the Divorce by Legislative enactment of July 22, 1957 (1,1,1, 1957-58, p. 21).

Divorce and annulment actions are filed in the District Court in the same manner as other civil cases. The work of the District or the High Court in the matter of the records of the courts in the regular manner and the payment of the court is recorded in a judgment book for the District Court. There are no separate records kept for divorce judgments. All civil judgments are recorded in the same manner. It is possible to have some for a certain type of action, divorce and annulment cases for the District Court. The only records for which legal proceedings have been made are entered throughout the western calendar. It will be noted that it was during the period covered by the judgment book that the question of the annulment of the marriage was considered by the Provincial Assembly. This is recorded in the Provincial Gazette for this period. It is noted that it was during this period that the Provincial Assembly was formed on a basis of representation that was with a number of members on the Provincial Council or the Provincial Assembly.

The Bureau of Social Statistics for India has been collecting data from the various sources on the number of divorces cases filed in the District Courts since 1950. Detailed statistics are sent to the Chief of the district court in each county each year asking that all divorce suits filed within that year be enumerated and reported to the Bureau. This is a voluntary and extra-legal action both on the part of the Bureau of Vital Statistics and of that of the reporting agencies. How accurate these statistics may be depends on the care with which the enumeration and report is made by the clerks in the various counties. Since it is not required by law, the permanency of this reporting depends on the personnel in the Bureau of Vital Statistics. The commendable practice may be continued indefinitely, or it may be dropped at any time.

There is no specific legal provision designating the fee which will be charged for a transcript of a divorce judgment. Ordinarily $0.20 per "folio" of each 100 words is charged for making the copy and an additional $0.50 for the certificate of true copy.
