

STORY OF ESQUIRE BROWN AND HIS MULE

MULES LIKE FACTS ARE STUBBORN THINGS.—Smith.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the product of well-aiected study and intelligent elaboration. Price 25 cents. For sale by all dealers in medicine.

Here you see old Mr. Brown,
With mule and cart all bound for town.

JNO. M. LITTIG, President Marine Nat'l. Bank, Baltimore, says that he has tested Salvation Oil and finds it a most excellent remedy for neuralgia.

The stubborn donkey will not start,
So Mr. Brown must push the cart.

Never defer until to-morrow what should be attended to today. A slight cough should not be neglected, when Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure it.

To back the cart the mule seems bound,
When Brown resolves to turn him round.

Hon. JNO. E. SMITH, of Westminster, Md., Judge of the Circuit Court, says that he uses Salvation Oil in his family, and testifies to its efficacy.

His efforts prove of no avail,
And Brown lays hold of donkey's tail.

If you want to knock a cough or cold higher than a kite, use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents a bottle. At all dealers.

This proved too much for mule to bear,
With kick he sent Brown in the air.

You will not get "left," if you buy a bottle of Salvation Oil for your rheumatism, neuralgia, &c., &c. Swift, sure and safe. Price 25 cents.

Simpkins to Brown would plainly show
A plan to make the donkey go.

Col. J. ARMOY KNOX, of the "Texas Siftings," New York City, writes that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup cured him of a severe cold in less than 48 hours.

Resolved the donkey shall ride free,
They throw him in the cart you see.

*"The price of liberty is eternal vigilance," the price of Salvation Oil,
"the greatest cure on earth for pain," is twenty-five cents per bottle,*

The mule was drawn along quite fair,
Through efforts of the faithful pair.

At home they fall, they did their best—
They take involuntary rest,
While o'er their prostrate forms, it seems,
The mule's bland smile victorious beams.

A FRIEND THAT NEVER GROWS OLD.

ANY medicine prepared to meet the urgent demand for a safe and reliable remedy for diseases of the pulmonary organs is entitled to the intelligent consideration of all who dwell in our constantly changing climate. Viewed in its importance for the preservation of health and even life itself, it becomes difficult to over-estimate a remedy which thoroughly controls these troublesome and dangerous affections; troublesome, because of the extreme annoyance generally attendant upon coughs and colds, and dangerous, because of their ultimate tendency when neglected. Very many remedies utterly fail to realize the extraordinary claims made for them, when subjected to that impartial jury—the public—and have therefore but a short existence. Only a few survive, and of these but the smallest number ever enjoy a very high reputation and general use. To the latter class belongs Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup which for nearly half a century has been uninterruptedly kept in thousands and thousands of families throughout the United States, where it has achieved a popularity seldom, if ever, accorded to a similar remedy before, as is fully evinced by the testimony of leading drug houses and prominent private individuals, whose original certificates are preserved at our office. When it is remembered that life is saved more by the timely prevention of the encroachments of disease than by combating disease when established, the propriety of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in the beginning stages of coughs, colds, etc., is assuredly unquestionable, and of supreme importance in view of the insidious approach of consumption—that merciless enemy of life.

JUST FOR FUN.

An editor down in Kentucky, in reporting a wedding, said that the bride was not particularly handsome, but the father threw in 7 mules, and the husband was satisfied.

In thirty-eight states and thirteen territories of the United States the people use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

"How many children have you?" asked one friend of an old acquaintance. "Well, I have five, but they were eating cucumbers when I left home and they may be all doubled up now."

What a grand, great country this is with its vast territory, its big rivers, its pretty women, and its Veni, Vidi, Vici cure; its Salvation Oil.

A mule's hind leg has only one season—it is always a beautiful spring, even if it is backward. Spring in this case is always followed by an early fall.

What is the best advice to give to parties about to marry? Don't do it—unless you keep a supply of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup on hand.

"Best hand I ever held," said a fellow as he impudently squeezed a lady's fingers. "Yes, it is good," said she, withdrawing it and boxing his ear: "It's a pat hand."

He led the german, and his dudish dress was the admiration of the assembled fair, but his stout partner slipped on his favorite corn. Sensation! Salvation Oil to the rescue. Happiness again!

"My wife," said Jones, "is an excellent performer on the jewsharp;" "Why," said Smith, "it is a singular instrument for a woman to play on." "Beats a' the instruments though that women generally play on." "How's that?" "Why, she can't talk or sing while she is playing."

Meet me by the light of the moon, my dear, and be sure to bring my good old friend—Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

"If I'm not home from the party at ten o'clock, don't wait for me, wife." "No, I'll not wait for you. If you're not home, I'll go for you."—He arrived at ten.

PLAIN FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

IN this country, where the climate is so variable, and the transition from heat to cold and vice versa so sudden, necessarily the affections of the nerves, joints, and tissues about the joints, such as neuralgia, sciatica, rheumatism, and gout, very generally prevail. In all these diseases and many others of like nature the proximate cause is cold and moisture, and consequently they may be brought about by the occupancy of damp rooms, sleeping in damp linen, or even so slight a provocation as a draught of cold air. The almost universal prevalence of these diseases and the exquisite pain attending their continuance have induced the proprietors of Salvation Oil to place before the public a perfect liniment at a reasonable cost so as to bring it within the reach of all, which instantly relieves the sufferer from these maladies and in an incredibly short time effects a cure. Salvation Oil is composed of the best and purest drugs in the pharmacopœia and guaranteed to contain nothing of a noxious or poisonous character. It is exceedingly subtle and diffusive in its nature, and, when applied to the affected part speedily finds its way to the seat of the disease, penetrating to the very bone. Its efficacy in soothing irritation, removing inflammation and destroying pain makes it invaluable in the treatment and cure of all wounds that are liable to occur every day in the family circle, such as cuts, bruises, sprains, burns, scalds, chilblains, etc. It should be kept in every family. Its effects upon the diseases of animals is no less pronounced. For cure of galls of all kinds, strains, bruises, cracked heels, sweency, scratches, fistulas, poll-evil, etc., Salvation Oil is without a rival in the market.

Josh Billings says: "The mawl is a larger burd than the goose or turkey. It has two legs to walk with, and two more to kick with, and it wares its wings on the side of its hed."
