MYRICA CERIFERA.

ANALOGUES.—Asarum canadensis, Acidum benzoic., Berberis vulgaris, Bromine, Chimaphila, Cornus circinata, Cubeba, Eryngium aquaticum, Eupatorium aromaticum, Hydrastis can., Hepar sulphur, Kali bichromicum, Lachesis, Mercurius iodatus, Spongia.

The Myrica belongs to a group of remedies of which Hepar sulphur is the typical member. It has many points of analogy with other medicines belonging to that group, while it holds relationship to members of others. A close study of its symptoms will show these points of resemblance.

The Bayberry has been in common use in the practice of the people, and the so-called "Botanic" physicians, ever since the settlement of New England. The Eclectic school hold it in high estimation in many diseases.

It remained for the Homœopathic School to investigate its powers and uses in a rational manner. The first notice of this medicine in our literature was in the second edition of "New Remedies," where its botanical description and medical history was given, and two extended provings by Dr. L. Walker.

The next public mention of the Myrica was made in the second volume of "Publications of the Massachusetts Homœopathic Medical Society." This consisted of a "Report of the Committee on Materia Medica," made to that Society in 1864. This report consists of provings made by Dr. H. L. Chase, Dr. Charles Cullis, Dr. C. Wesselhœeft, Dr. F. H. Krebs, Dr. J. E. Linnell, and two women. Some of these provings were made with the mother tincture, others with finely-pulverized bark. Eight provings have been made of the Myrica. The following pathogenesis is composed of the symptoms thus obtained, also from a few fragmentary provings, and accidental symptoms, observed by Dr. H. P. Hale and Mr. Chapman (Chemist). All the symptoms recorded appear to be reliable and trustworthy.

The curative symptoms were obtained from reliable persons, and from the results of my own observation and use of the remedy.

This pathogenesis, although not as complete as could be desired, is full enough and sufficiently suggestive to be the basis of its use in the selection of the remedy. That it will prove a valuable medicine, we do not doubt, if it is carefully selected and used in proper doses. The cures made with the Myrica have, up to this time, been made with the crude drug and the lower attenuations; no experience of its use in the higher potencies has yet come under my notice.

Without attempting to theorize in relation to its special affinities, the Myrica appears to me to act principally upon the mucous membranes. This is a general action, and seems to extend to its remotest and minutest ramifications. I believe that nearly all its symptoms arise directly or indirectly from this action.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNS.—A symptom in italic indicates its apparent importance, or prominence in the provings. The words “in,” “when,” “with,” “it,” etc., italicised, indicate the special relation of two or more symptoms. The sign “.” indicates a simple pathogenetic symptom. The sign “*” indicates that the symptom has been verified by a cure. The letters (v) or (vv) indicate that the symptom has been verified by one or more provers. The sign “=” is prefixed to a curative symptom or group of symptoms not found in the pathogenesis. The letter (t) indicates that the cure was made by the topical application. The pathogenetic symptoms are all numbered after the usual plan.

MIND AND DISPOSITION.

1. Deficient concentration of mind on any subject.(v)
2. Gloomy, terribly depressed, despondent.(vv).
3. Indifference to everything—even to friends.

 °Apthæ of the mouth.[t]
 °Tender, spongy and bleeding gums.
 *Follicular stomatitis.

THROAT.

- 56 .Soreness of the throat in the morning.
- 57 .Sensation as of a foreign substance in the throat, requiring it to be frequently cleared, with painful deglutition, in the afternoon.[v]
- 58 .Constricted and rough feeling in the throat, it feels swollen.[v]
- 59 .Constant desire to swallow, from a sense of constriction in throat.[v]
- 60 .Stringy mucus in the the throat, detached with difficulty.
- 61 .Throat and nasal organs filled with an offensive, tenacious mucus, detached with difficulty.
- 62 .Dryness of the throat.
- 63 .Dry, sore feeling in the pharynx, as when one has taken cold, succeeded by difficult deglutition.
- 64 .Semi-lancinating pain in right side of the throat, near the tonsil.
- °Ulceration of the fauces.
- °Aphthous tonsillitis.

TASTE AND APPETITE.

- 65 .Taste bitter and nauseous.
- 66 .Taste foul, with offensive breath.
- 67 .Feeling of fullness in the digestive organs, as if food was slowly digested.
- 68 .Craving, unnatural appetite, with feeling of fullness in the stomach, as after a hearty meal.[vv] [primary]
- 69 .Appetite for breakfast impaired.
- 70 .Complete loss of appetite, but with a feeling of fullness and repletion in the abdomen.[v] [secondary]
- 71 .Strong desire for acids.

GASTRIC DERANGEMENTS.

- 72 .Nausea, followed by heavy headache.
- 73 .Empty eructations, relieving the pressure in the stomach for a short time only.
- 74 .Heartburn, with water-brash.

HEPATIC SYMPTOMS.

- 75 .Dull pain in the region of the liver.

76 .Complete jaundice, with bronze-yellow skin, loss of appetite ; fullness in the stomach and abdomen ; scanty, yellow, frothy urine ; loose, mushy, clay-colored (or straw-colored) stools, destitute of bile, much debility, and drowsiness almost amounting to stupor.*

[This jaundice was not relieved by Podophyllum, Leptandra, Nux vomica, Arsenicum, or Mercurius dulcis, but was speedily removed by Digitalis  $\frac{1}{10}$ th dil.]

*“ Black jaundice.”

STOMACH AND ABDOMEN.

77 .Distress in the stomach after dinner.

78 .Acidity of the stomach.

79 .Severe pain in the stomach.

80 .Weak, sinking, feeling in the epigastrium, approaching nausea, increased after eating, relieved by rapid walking.[v]

81 .Vomiting, with heat in the stomach.

82 .Severe griping pains about the stomach, followed by

83 .Empty eructations.[v]

84 .Stinging, cramp-like sensation in left præ-cardial region, under the ribs.

85 .Griping pressure in stomach, extending to a place to the left of the navel.

86 .Grumbling pain in the bowels, in afternoon.

87 .Griping pain in bowels, at night, followed, in the morning by loose stool, with tenesmus.

88 .Colic-like pains in umbilical region, in a small spot, with accumulation of flatus, and passage of offensive flatus.[v]

89 .Constant, unusual rumbling in abdomen, above the navel.

90 .Griping pain in region of umbilicus, with rumbling.

91 .Weak, faintish feeling about the bowels, as when one has diarrhoea.

* The icteric symptoms of Myrica are undoubted. Dr. Walker proved the drug under my own observation. By reference to the two provings made by him, it will be seen that during the first proving he had “drowsiness, with heavy frontal morning headache, yellowness of the eyes, scantiness of urine, and light-colored feces,”—all the premonitory symptoms of jaundice. At this point the medicine was suspended, and the above symptoms disappeared. At the next proving the same symptoms recurred, but this time were kept up by the action of the drug until complete jaundice obtained. This jaundice, I believe, was owing to suspended secretion, and not to obstruction. Had the latter condition been the cause of the jaundice, critical discharges of black, tarry matters would have been noticed, whereas, in this case, the feces, under the action of Digitalis, gradually resumed a healthy color and appearance, and the same change occurred in the condition of the urine. Jaundice appears to be a secondary effect of Myrica ; consequently when used as a curative agent in that disease, the lower attenuations will be best indicated.

STOOL AND ANUS.

- 92 .Loose stool, after dinner, with pain and tenesmus.
- 93 .Sensation as of approaching diarrhœa, followed by small, costive discharges and griping, colic-like pains.
- 94 .Constant discharge of flatus when walking.
- 95 .In A. M. felt as though diarrhœa would occur, followed by weakness about the bowels, with urging and pressing, without stool.
- 96 .Constipation, after previous loose stools.
- 97 .Soft, copious, papescent stool, attended by tenesmus and cramp-like sensation in umbilical region.
- 98 .Urging to stool, with no other result than the expulsion of a great amount of flatus.
- 99 .Excessive flatulence, in P. M., with frequent rumbling, as if diarrhœa would set in.[v]
- 100 .Stool nearly natural in consistency, but lighter colored.
- 101 .Loose, light-colored stool, growing lighter-colored daily, until it became ash-colored and destitute of bile.
 °Chronic diarrhœa. °Diarrhœa of consumptives.

SEXUAL ORGANS.

MALE.

- 102 .Amorous dreams, with emission of semen (this never occurred to the prover before.)
 °Chronic gonorrhœa.

FEMALE—(None yet obtained).

- °Leucorrhœa, excoriating, fœtid, thick and yellowish,[t]
 (of several years' duration.)

URINARY ORGANS.

- 103 .Sharp, plunging pain in region of the left kidney.
- 104 .Difficulty of urinating; the bladder seemed to lack contractive expelling power.
- 105 .Copious flow of limpid urine.[v] [primary effect]
- 106 .Urine deposits a light-colored sediment.
- 107 .Light-brownish-colored sediment.
- 108 .Urine darker than usual,—grows darker every day, until it is a deep brownish-yellow.[secondary effect]
- 109 .A pinkish-brown sediment in the urine.

- 110 .Scanty, high-colored urine, saturated with the coloring matter of the bile.
 111 .Frothy, high-colored urine—(froth yellow).

RESPIRATORY ORGANS.

- 112 .Smarting in larynx and trachea.
 113 .Pain in the left lung.
 114 .Dull pain in right lung, middle lobe, lasting a few minutes.
 115 .Constriction in the chest when lying on the left side in bed, with such increase of the impulse of the heart that its pulsations were audible.
 116 .Sharp pain in the region of the heart.
 °Cough, very much aggravated by talking. °Tickling cough, at night, on lying down. °Cough, with profuse expectoration. °Chronic bronchitis.
