EXPLANATORY OF AIMS AND METHODS.

The St. Louis Training School for Nurses, a society organized under the laws of this State, appeals to the public for sympathy and support. It has been commonly supposed that any person with a desire in that direction could properly nurse the sick, and the professional nurse has too often been found to be entirely without education or moral character. The well known characters depicted by Dickens in "Martin Chuzzlewit" are not so much exaggerations as it at first seems, and to the class of which they are the type our sick have been trusted when the immediate friends and relatives have been incapacitated from attending them.

Good nursing is as indispensable in illness as proper medical attention. Good nursing means intelligent work, a knowledge of the best methods of caring for the patient. This intelligence can only be obtained by proper instruction and by practical experience at the bedside, and this intelligence and instruction the Training School proposes to give.

Dr. Jacobi, of New York, says: "I do know and publicly proclaim that the results of the best physicians have vastly improved since their cases have been in the hands of trained nurses." The knowledge of uneducated women was, and is, ignorance driven to actual or alleged work by starvation. The knowledge of a trained nurse is the result of two years' study under competent teachers and a constant practice.

Something was done early in the century towards instructing nurses in this country, and fifty years ago training schools were established in Germany; but the first training school in this country was established in 1873 in connection with Bellevue Hospital, in New York, modelled after the training school attached to St. Thomas's Hospital, London, founded by Miss Nightingale. The first graduating class of the Bellevue Training School numbered but six members. They now have 62 pupils, and four hundred applicants are waiting for an opportunity to enter. Training schools have been established in Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Rochester, Chicago, and other cities, until there are now more than twenty existing in this country.

The graduates of the Eastern schools have constant employment at $16 to $20 per week.

That the School is needed in St. Louis is evident to any one who has had occasion to require the services of a nurse.

The School may in time be self-supporting, but this cannot be expected at present, and the Executive Committee appeal to the public for substantial aid. They do not regard this enterprise as in any way a charity. It appeals to the selfish side of our natures. The presence of a band of trained nurses, ready at all times to respond to the call of the sick, will be an inestimable boon. The Committee direct attention to the articles of Association and the By-laws, and solicit application for membership in the society, which may be addressed to Mrs James M. Leete, Treasurer, 2912 Washington Avenue, St. Louis.

The Executive Committee of the St. Louis Training School for Nurses has made arrangements with the authorities of the St. Louis City Hospital for giving two years' training to women desirous of becoming professional nurses.

Applicants for admission to the Training School must be preferably between twenty-five and thirty years of age, of medium height and size, and possess a good common-school education. They must present certificates of good character, sound health, and physical capacity for the duties of nurses, satisfactory to the Admission Committee and to the Superintendent and Surgeon in charge of the Hospital. They should make their application to Mrs. R. H. Kealhofer, Chairman of the Admission Committee, No. 609 Garrison Avenue, St. Louis.

After approval, they will be received into the School for one month on probation, during which time they will be boarded and lodged, but will receive no other compensation unless accepted as pupils, when they must sign an agreement to remain in the School and subject themselves to the rules of the School and of the Hospital for a period of two years from the date of their entrance into the School.

Applicants may be received at any time during the year, when vacancies occur.

Failure to discharge the duties imposed, violation of the rules or regulations of the School or Hospital, evidence of moral or physical unfitness for their work, will be deemed sufficient cause for dismissal.

A monthly allowance of ten dollars ($10) for the first year, and of twelve dollars ($12) for the second year will be made to each pupil. This sum is allowed for dress, text-books and other personal expenses of the nurses, and is in no wise intended as wages, it being considered that the education given is a full equivalent for their services. Board and washing will be furnished without charge, and in illness all pupils will have gratuitous medical attention.

The nurses are required, after the month of probation, to wear when on duty the dress prescribed by the School, which is of blue and white seersucker, simply made, white apron and cap, linen collar and cuffs.

The day nurses are on duty from seven A. M. to seven P. M., and, when practicable, some time each day will be given for exercise in the open air. They are allowed a day off duty once a month. A vacation of two weeks is allowed in each year.

It is not proposed to place nurses on night duty until they have been in the school three months.

At the end of each term there will be an examination of the pupils, conducted under the supervision and in the presence of the Instruction Committee and of the Superintendent and Surgeon in charge of the Hospital, which being creditably passed, will entitle pupils of two years' standing to the Diploma and Badge of the Training School.

INSTRUCTION.

The instruction includes: —

1. The dressing of blisters, burns, sores and wounds; preparation and application of fomentations, poultices, cups and leeches, and of minor dressings.

2. The administration of enemias and the use of the catheter and the management of appliances for uterine troubles.

3. The management of helpless patients, making beds, changing clothing, giving baths in bed, prevention and treatment of bed sores, and the best methods of friction to the body and extremities.

4. Bandaging, making bandages and lining splints.

5. Care of patients' rooms, changing sheets while the patient is in bed. The best methods of supplying fresh air and of warming rooms and hospital wards.

6. Certain emergencies and how to treat them.

7. The preparation and serving of food for the sick.

The pupils will also be instructed to make accurate observations and reports to the physician in charge, of the state of the secretions, expectoration, pulse, skin, appetite, temperature of the body, intelligence — as delirium or stupor, breathing, sleep, conditions of wounds, eruptions, formation of pus, effect of diet, of stimulants, and of medicine, and to learn the management of convalescents.

When the full term of two years is ended, the nurses thus trained will be at liberty to choose their own field of labor, whether in hospitals or private families.

Applicants for admission to the school will be required to answer the following questions. Blanks for this purpose may be had on application to the Superintendent of Nurses, at the Home, 1510 Lafayette Ave., St. Louis, or to Mrs. R. H. Kealhofer, Chairman of the Admission Committee, 509 Garrison Avenue, St. Louis:
