Dear Dr. Kornberg:

We are writing to you as a Nobel laureate in physiology and/or medicine to ask two questions. We hope that you will be kind enough to answer them briefly and, if you wish, to grant us permission to reproduce them. I am asking for this material in relation to work which we are doing in our ethics classes here at Midland College.

We should be pleased to receive your responses to the following questions:

- 1) What do you feel is the most urgent spiritual or moral challenge facing the world today?
- 2) What do you feel is the most significant contribution physiologists and physicians can make to human progress at this time?

Thanking you for your consideration,
I remain, very truly yours,

Allan Hauck
