Dear Josh,

I asked Charles Yanofsky to give you an E. coli strain for me, which, I am sure, will not cause you any trouble. There is, however, something else I would need which will be much more complicated for you - another portion of the EcoRI restriction enzyme from Stanley Cohen. It has to travel at -20°C . Sending it by mail and getting it out of customs here is a long story, by the end of which the -20°C is doubtful.

If you think it will not complicate your travel could you ask Ron or Dudes to get me some enzyme and Hela can then pack it properly? If it is too cumbersome just forget about it.

Looking very much forward to you all,

Yehudit

Elaine
