

OCT 6 1975

Collaborative Centre for Reference and Research on Escherichia (WHO)
I&FØ/at

October 2, 1975

Professor Joshua Lederberg
Department of Genetics
Stanford University
Palo Alto 94304
U.S.A.

Dear Josh,

From a very recent meeting (last week) in Newcastle with Ann and Gan we know that all is well with your family and that your daughter is thriving. It certainly was nice to revive old memories and we are already looking very much forward to our time in US in 1977 on the Fogarthy Scholarship.

But, as you have probably already realized, we do not write only to talk about the old days. We have to-day been asked to take part in a small meeting arranged by the Danish Science Research Council on genetical engineering (Oct. 10) and related problems and we feel that our somewhat rusty brains might be stimulated by your article in PRISM which Mr. Garfield wrote about so enthusiastically recently. Has it appeared, or do you happen to have a preprint?

Kindest regards to you and your family,

Yours sincerely,

Ida and Frits Ørskov

OCT 13 1975

"PRISM" article sent

p. 229