Dear Bill:

Upon my return to the University from vacation, I was most pleased to find your letter of August 29, with its deeply appreciated demonstration of your continued respect and concern for this institution's work. As you know, such essential unrestricted support makes available to our scientists the financial resources they need to pursue unexpected and relevant new avenues of research. In this way you help to maintain the exceptional quality and productivity of our programs.

The University is indeed fortunate to number you among its friends.

Sincerely,

Joshua Lederberg
