Dear Dr. Lederberg,

Last fall I completed my Ph.D. in social and physiological psychology at Columbia University. I am now Assistant Professor of Medical Psychology at USUHS.

I remember so well that when I was trying to help you discover the extent of Martinus Wilhelm Beijerinck's role in the rediscovery of Mendel's work, you often spoke of the National Library of Medicine. I am now across the street from that library and have already enjoyed using it.

I am writing to thank you again for the support, encouragement, and advice which you gave me at Stanford. You generously gave me your time and consideration. Your behavior and attitude has and will continue to serve as a guideline for my dealings with students.

If I can ever be of any service to you, please don't hesitate to call on me. Remember, the National Library of Medicine is just spitting's distance away.

Yours truly,

Neil
