

Sunday June 14

Dear Dr. Federber:

I'm writing you from my home, while chuckling over your editorial in the June 13th Post. I know Dr. Haagen-Smit personally, and know that his fame originated in the area of plant hormone research (that's how he got involved in air pollution), and this research led to 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T, etc. In view of this, your comment leaves me chuckling.

"... but I know of no other pernicious side effects of his research."

Incidentally, the review in today's (Sun. June 14) Post of your Testimony is great. But I do have that vague feeling that the masses have yet to "be touched", to "understand," or something -- which adds up to personal disenchantment with contemporary society.

Best regards —

Harold W. Wolf
