

Memo from
JOSHUA LEDERBERG

To: Nathan Glazer

BLOOD

AUG 11 1971

I enjoyed your article in Public Interest, and hope to chat with you about similar issues during the coming year.

Your criticisms of Titmuss' analysis are well founded.

Our total lack of system in the blood 'market' (and in many related areas) strikes me as the fundamental defect. The prevalence of hepatitis raises many even more complex questions.

Sincerely,

PROFESSOR JOSHUA LEDERBERG
Department of Genetics
School of Medicine
Stanford University
Stanford, California 94305