Dear Ms. Schwartz:

When I was talking with Ms. Mary Wagner this morning, she said that I would have to request the information I am seeking in writing before The Rockefeller University would respond. I hope this letter will meet your requirements.

A client of mine in Japan is planning an international conference next year in Tokyo on the theme of strategies in R&D management. The sponsoring organization is preparing a short list of individuals to consider for giving the keynote address to this conference. I have suggested to them that Dr. Joshua Lederberg's name should be on this short list, and for that purpose, I am requesting a brief biographical statement on Dr. Lederberg and information about The Rockefeller University and its research programs.

If it would be possible for you to send me this information promptly it would be of great help.

For your information, I worked with Dr. Lederberg a number of years ago on an article on his management style in managing the staff at The University.

Thank you.

Cordially,

Ernest C. Miller
