Dear Dr. Bunnett:

I appreciate your invitation to submit an article for Accounts of Chemical Research.

This may indeed serve a very useful function, particularly in the light of the very wide distribution of your new journal. May I then accept.

I will endeavor to have a manuscript in the mail to you by January 10, 1968 on the theme of "Computer emulation of scientific inference: elementary organic chemistry". I welcome this opportunity to boil down what my colleagues and I have been trying to do in a rather unconventional kind of effort that needs to be exposed to many sources of critical judgment. The best evaluation we can make is that "We are doing the best we can."

Sincerely,

Joshua Lederberg
Professor of Genetics
