Dear Tracy:

I was so sorry to hear about your father, because I remembered how attached you were at him, and could imagine your sorrow. Hope your mother is not too depressed by her loss.

I didn't write before, as I hoped you might have time to drop in on your way back to Bloomington. I am slowly improving, and, but for some pains here + there, I feel really well now. I begin to think about phage again - I am afraid they aren't going to let me get up for some time yet, on account of the phlebitis - How's your work coming? Found more "induced killers". Best regards, Luria
