

Oct. 24, 1950

Dear Tracy,

I just saw your article in Heredity, 4, 11, 1950. I read it and found it very exciting, particularly because, by coincidence, I spent last weekend writing on natural relationship of viruses and arrived to the conclusion of the existence, from present day's knowledge, of 2 types of cytoplasmic heredity, distinguished on exactly your criteria. Since you put the whole thing so much better, I'd like to have your paper available while I write that chapter of my book. Can you send me a reprint now?

We are getting settled. How did Theo's operation go?
Best regards, Luria