Dear Wilson:

My plans are a bit of a mess right now. I am still expecting to spend the fall term and perhaps the summer with Lederberg at Stanford. But there is one complication; I am now acting as Dean of the Medical School. There is a good chance of our having a permanent Dean by the beginning of summer, in which case I would get there then. But, if the search is not successful, I may have to stay on longer.

I haven't had a chance yet to read Bledsoe's papers. I would be glad to work some with him when I get to Stanford, though of course I don't want to have too many things to detract from my working with Josh. I don't know how to advise you or him; the chances of my being in Stanford for the fall term at least are very good, but the probability is not 1.

Hurriedly,

James F. Crow
