

Budapest, April 27, 1958.

Dear Dr. Lederberg,

I am very glad to inform you that I have now some hopes to be able to attend the Congress of Genetics at Montréal because I have been awarded with a travel grant. However it is true the travel depends on whether I shall get my passeport still in due time at all. If so, I have the intention to meet some geneticists in the United States after the Congress according to the possibilities what I can arrange concerning the travel and living expenses. Because I am already invited to visit The Lilly Research Laboratories and the Botany Department of the Indiana University, this "vicinity" would offer an opportunity for me to visit also your Department in Madison, I think so at least. May I ask you, ~~therefore~~, whether you are in the position to receive me for some days, because I have to send my itinerary for my visit in the United States to Professor Ryan, who is then making the necessary official informative steps. The exact date I do not know yet, it depends, of course, on your time too; as far as I can see now, it should be either about the middle of September or the second half of October.

I would very much appreciate if you could ^{give} me an answer whether I can ^{take} into account a visit to the Genetics Department of the University of Wisconsin or perhaps there are some difficulties not allowing it.

With the kindest regards

very sincerely yours
