

AMHERST COLLEGE

Amherst, Massachusetts

DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGY

May 22, 1952

Dr. Joshua Lederberg

Department of Genetics
University of Wisconsin
Madison, Wisconsin

Dear Josh:

Thank you for your kind letter. I have been thinking the situation over and have decided to stick it out here for a year. Ives and I have some interesting work started with lethals in melanogaster populations and I hope that it will yield a few papers. Meanwhile I have one in press and another ready to submit. So, research-wise a few things have developed. However, I am still interested about getting into some straight research and unless the situation here changes drastically I shall want to make a break.

Are you planning to be at the Ethan meeting? We shall be there and would like to see you very much. Perhaps we can talk about this in a bit more detail at that time.

Once again thank you very much for hearing me out. It makes me feel quite good to have somebody to talk to about these things. I have had to hash most of them out by myself up until now.

Sincerely,
Paul