

Fig. 2: 1969 conceptualization of an adenylyl cyclase system stimulated by multiple hormones. Receptors were thought to be separate of adenylyl cyclase and of having two domains: a distinct ligand binding domain responsible for specificity of interaction and a common the adenylyl cyclase domain allowing all to interact with a common enzyme. (From Rodbell et al., 1970b).