

BATHES

The benefit of fuch as would shorten their journey to BA f H.

Here are lately made, and that I be continued feverall forts of bathes wet and dry, both Minera land Vegetable, equivolent in their a fects to those at Bith, very necessarile and useful for most bodies, as well the whole for prevention, as sick for comfort; the vertues of bathes being so commonly known, I shall not need to particularis, but in generall they are good for all cold and maist bodies, and distempers proceeding from coldness and moisture, they have much the cures of many diseases, and perfect some otherwise incurable, with the hele of very little Phyfick.

If any sh I magine, hat we cannot have our bathes here so good and effect all as those at Bath; to them, I shall thus answer: That if we truly understand (as we pretend to do) what those bathes of Bath consist of, and finding them to be thing; common y known, and easie to be had, we undoubtedly may by art compose as good here. Nay more, we can add what we find deserve, and diminish or take away what we find disagreeable, according to the several constitutions of our Patients, which they at Bath cannot do, but all constitutions and distempers, must be content with the same mixture of Mineralls imbib'd in the same water, onely some a degree hotter then other.

Mineral Baths for Venereal D'feases.

Here are also certain new invented Minerall Buthes, provided purposed by for cradication of Veneral Distempers, being the speediest, most certain, and easie way that hath hitherto been used in this Nation. They work a most perfect and absolute cure of the French Pox, wherebe any that have been import soily cured, and have any symptoms of that disease remaining, as pains in their I mbs, &c. may have it perfectly eradicated and confirmed sound. Also such as here had any venemous, corrupt, or virulent Gonorth as, or Fluxes of the Reins, which leave the body in unsound and dange-our condition, may by these have all the remaining venome and corroding humors dissolved and extracted. In a word, Mineral bathes are things most absolutely necessary in all kins of virule relapses, without which the body can very hardly be secured from such establishes, or warranted sound, as too many by costly experience can testifie.

If any shall desire a larger account, they may at my house next door to the three Pomegranats in Burbican receive further latisfaction; where these baths are to be had, with all accommodation necessary.
