

NORTH-AMERICAN
CALENDAR,
OR AN
ALMANACK,
FOR THE YEAR OF OUR LORD

1791:

AND THE FIFTEENTH OF THE INDEPENDENCE OF AMERICA.

Containing (beside the usual Calculations) a Variety of useful and entertaining Matter.

TYPE of the ECLIPSE, April 3d.

*Far brighter scenes, a future age,
The muse predicts, these States shall last,
Whose genius shall the world engage,
Whose deeds shall over death prevail.*

PROVIDENCE: Printed and Sold by
BENNETT WHEELER.

ECLIPSES FOR 1791.

THERE will be FOUR Eclipses this Year, as follows:—

I. The first will be a visible and very remarkable Eclipse of the Sun, on the 3d of April;—The Moon being near her Apogee, her apparent Semidiameter will be less than that of the Sun,—it cannot be total but will be Annular, i. e. it will appear like a Gold Ring.—See the Type in the Title Page.

By Calculation as follows:

Beginning at	6	20	}	Mean Time, in the Morning.
Begins to be Annular	7	29
Middle	7	31
End of Annular Appearance,	7	34
End of the Eclipse,	8	54
Digits eclipsed,	11 . 2

II. The Second will be of the Moon, April 18, a few Minutes past Noon, invisible.

III. The Third will be of the Sun, September 27th, at 7 o'Clock, P. M. invisible.

IV. The Fourth will be a visible Eclipse of the Moon, on the 11th of October.—By Calculation as follows:

Beginning at	7	20	24	}	Mean Time, in the Evening.
Middle at	8	51	17
End	10	22	10
Duration	3 h. 1 m. 46 sec.

Digits eclipsed 8 . 4, on the North Side.

VULGAR NOTES FOR 1791.

Epact,	25	Dominical Letter,	B

ON CONTENTMENT.

IF thou art blessed with riches, be liberal, be charitable, be content—if thou art poor, be industrious, be frugal, be content—if thou art exalted, be not contemptuous, be mild, steady, wise, determined, be content—if thou art low, be judicious, make thyself deserving, be content.—If thou knowest neither riches nor poverty, be content, be happy—thou art blessed indeed, if, in this situation, thou hast a contented mind.

WHEN Garrick was at Paris, Preville invited him to his villa. Preville was reckoned the most accomplished comedian of the French theatre. The British Roscius being in a gay humour, proposed to go in one of the hired coaches that were upon the stand. When they got in, he ordered the coachman to drive on, who answered, that he would as soon as he got his compliment of four passengers. A caprice immediately seized Garrick; he determined to give his brother player a specimen of his art. While the coachman was attentively plying for passengers, Garrick slipped out of the door, went round the coach, and by his wonderful command of countenance, palmed himself upon the driver for a stranger. This he did twice, and was admitted each time into the coach as a fresh passenger, to the astonishment and admiration of Preville! He whipped out a third time, and addressing himself to the coachman, was answered in a surly tone, that he had already got his compliment of four, and would have drove off without him, had not Preville called out, that as the stranger appeared to be a very little man, they would to accommodate the gentleman, contrive to make room.

A PHYSICIAN of some eminence, whose prescriptions had failed of their efficacy, charged the patient with eating turnips, and attributed the ill success of the medicine to this cause: A pupil who attended with his master upon the visit, asked him how he found out that the man had eaten turnips. "Why you fool, did you not see the parings upon the floor." The next day young master was sent, and found the patient dead, which he wisely attributed to his swallowing a cat. "Pray," says the elder Galen, "how did you discover this," "Sir," replied the lad, "I saw the skin hanging at the door."

IN the old French war, as it is called, a gentleman by the name of Briant, was chaplain on board an armed vessel. In the same vessel was an Irish barber of considerable wit and humour. The chaplain was naturally facetious, and loved a good turn; and would therefore often divert himself in conversation with the barber. One day while under his hands, he asked him if he knew the O'Briens in Ireland? The barber replied that he did. "Well," said his Reverence, "that was my family's name originally; but after we left our country, we began to be ashamed of the O' and have now got our name to Briant: But, added he, we need not be ashamed of the family; for it was a high family in Ireland." "And indeed it was," replied the shaver, in the brogue of his country, "for I have seen some of them so high that their feet could not touch the ground."

---

AN Irish sailor, as he was riding, made a pause---the horse in beating off the flies, caught his hind foot in the stirrup; the sailor observing it said, "How now dobbin, if you are going to get on I'll get off, for d---n me if I'll ride double with you."

A Mr. Wyman who was famed for nothing but his stupidity and indolence, as he was going from home one day, was desired by his wife, not to be gone so much—"She was afraid to be left alone." "Pough," said he, "Nought is never in danger." "I know that," said she, "but Nought's wife is."

---

A LARGE party of gentlemen were invited to dinner at a gentleman's house. It so happened that one of the party was overheard to say to another, "Fools make feasts, and wise men eat them." The gentleman took it immediately, and said, "Wise men make proverbs, and fools repeat them."

---

D R. P. who was remarkably ugly, and had a very elegant seat, once told Dean Berkely that he thought it a nice marriage trap. Yes, possibly, says the Dean (looking him full in the face) but I am afraid that no lady will relish the bait.

---

A NEGRO servant being asked what colour he believed the devil was? Why, replied the African, the white men paint him black, we say he is white; but from his great age, and being called old Nick, I should suppose him grey.

THE HOSPITABLE BEAR.

LEOPOLD Duke of Lorraine, had a Bear, called Marco, of the sagacity and sensibility of which we have the following example. During the winter of 1709, a Savoyard boy, ready to perish with cold in a barn, in which he had been put by a good woman with some more of his companions, thought proper to enter Marco's hut, but, without reflection upon the danger which he ran in exposing himself to the mercy of the animal which occupied it. Marco, however, instead of doing any injury to the child, took him between his paws, and warmed him by squeezing him to his breast until the next morning when he suffered him to depart to ramble about the city. The Savoyard returned in the evening to the hut, and was received with the same affection. For the following days he had no other retreat: but what added much to his joy, was to perceive that the Bear had reserved part of his food for him. Several days passed in this manner without the servants perceiving any thing of the circumstance.— One day, when one of them came to bring his master his supper rather later than ordinary, he was astonished to see the animal roll his eyes in a furious manner, and seemed as if he wished him to make as little noise as possible, for fear of awaking the child whom he clasped to his breast. The animal, tho' ravenous, did not appear in the least moved with the food which was placed before him. The report of this extraordinary circumstance was soon spread at court, and reached the ears of Leopold, who, with part of his courtiers, was desirous of being satisfied of the truth of Marco's generosity. Several of them passed the night near his hut and beheld with astonishment, that the bear never stirred so long as his guest shewed any inclination to sleep. At break of day the child awoke, and fearing that he would be punished for his rashness, begged for pardon. The Bear, however, caressed him, and endeavoured to prevail on him to eat what had been brought him, which he did at the request of the spectators, who conducted him to the Prince.—Having learned the whole history of this singular alliance, the Prince ordered care to be taken of the little Savoyard.

VALUABLE RECEIPTS.

To stop bleeding at the nose.---Rub the nostrils with juice of nettles, or young nettles bruised.

A very good remedy for an hollow aching tooth.---Take of camphire and crude opium, of each four grains, make them into three pills, with as much oil of cloves as is convenient, roll them in cotton, apply one of them to the aching tooth, and repeat if there is occasion.

An excellent Plaister to be applied to the Feet in Fevers, which lie much in the Head. Take of Burgundy pitch, and emplastrum cephalicum, of each a like quantity; spread it upon sheep's leather and apply it.

To take away freckles, and beautify the skin.---Take of the oil of tartar, and oil of sweet almonds, of each equal parts, shake them well together, till they become white; every night going to bed, anoint the part.

Quick cure for colds, weakneses, and some consumptive cases.---Drink plentifully of marshmallows-tea, twice a day, till you find the disorder abated. This tea is admirable in the gravel; but then you may add thereto a few drops of spirits of nitre.

To keep arms, and other polished metals from rust.---One ounce of camphire, two pounds of hog's lard; dissolve them together, and take off the scum; mix as much black lead as will bring them to an iron colour; rub your arms, &c. over with this, and let it lie on 24 hours; then clean them with a linen cloth, and they will keep clean many months.
