The present disorder in the bowels, of which so many persons have died, should caution people against drinking malt liquors of any kind.
Gin, brandy, or red port, mixed with water, is the proper beverage. The medicine, if the disorder increase, is a dose of bark, with three drops of opium in it.

We feel a pleasure in announcing to the Public any new and useful discovery. — We are informed that Dr. John Elliot, of Newman-Street, the ingenious Author of several discoveries in chymistry and physiology, has invented a preparation from the substance called Manganese, which he has found, by a variety of trials, to be the most certain remedy yet known in inflammatory and putrid fevers whether eruptive or other. The discovery, it seems, was suggested to him by the known chemical properties of that substance, in conjunction with his own theory of the animal œconomy. He does not pretend that it is alike powerful in every species of fever, or that it is always efficacious without the assistance of other remedies; these are circumstances of which he can only judge from a review of the patient's case. But experience, we are told, authorizes him to assert, that it is the most effectual remedy that he has yet tried in the disorder mentioned; and only requests that he may be allowed the advantage of being called in as early as possible in the disease, as he can be less answerable for the efficacy of the medicine, in proportion as the fever has made greater ravages on the constitution. Dr. Elliott, we learn, only uses this remedy in his own practice; and has no intention of making it a quack medicine.

ʒth part of a Pint of the Spaw water, & again half an hour after that; which may be continued two or three days, & then to increase ^{the} portion to as much more water, which in the whole will amount to a Gill; that appears to be the Standard at which Mrs Y. ought to remain.

In the course of drinking the water, it is found that they will often heat the person; & occasion a costiveness. Should that happen, it may be advisable to draw from the arm 5 or 6 of blood & the day ^{after} take the opium draught. After the first week, to begin to bathe & remain in the bath no more than 2 or 3 minutes until the head can be bathed with the water from the Pump. The exercise of bathing may be used thrice a week, but great care ought to be taken to guard against

For the AGUE:—One ounce of stick liquorice cut into small pieces and made into tea; when the cold fit is going off, let the patient go to bed and drink as much of the tea, and as hot as possible, till it brings on a sweat, and then he still till the sweating is over. This generally cures at once taking, but hardly ever fails if taken twice. The patient is to drink nothing but weak liquorice tea for common drink, for three or four days after the fever is gone—A gentleman of Huntingdon has cured several persons of the present malignant agues and fevers by the above.

DOCTOR FREEMAN still continues to deliver to the Ladies his most useful and curious book, called "The Ladies Friend," containing twenty four sections of the infirmities and diseases incident to married and single women, and methods to remove the most obstinate diseases, together with the Practical Midwifery; thirteen curious engravings of the different positions of the infant in the womb, with seventy five different prescriptions for disorders incident to children and men; in the introduction of which is a Physical and Astronomical Description of Animation, or the supposed time the soul enters the body of the infant, as well as when the whole is perfected, jointed, and organized in the womb, &c &c, price 6s. bound, gilt and lettered, at No. 9, Salisbury Square, Fleet-street, where it may be had sealed up, if ordered. No woman ought to be without this publication. The author may be consulted.

For by me thy days shall be multiplied, and the years of thy life increased.

Prov. ix. ver. II.

This most ingenious publication may be had of Mr. Gardner, bookseller, in the Strand; Mr. Turpin, St. John's-street, West Smithfield; and by all booksellers in the Kingdom.

 too your Patients for the better, since I wrote last. - Miss K. Sotheron is uppermost in my mind, whom I cannot forget until she is well, & then I will do all I can not to disturb her. But as her Complaint is of long Date, I apprehend there is (as is wont) a slow Fever towards evening; which, if it is not totally rooted out, will give her no small trouble & uneasiness. It began with a Diarrhoea, which is now endemic, & some have neglected the affair until it has degenerated into a Dysentery. If there is at any time any sedim^t in the water, it ought then to be treated as a slow Fever of the
